Chapter 32

AN ACT TO ESTABLISH A LEGAL FRAMEWORK FOR INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

[Assented to 21 June 2001]

THE PARLIAMENT OF QUÉBEC ENACTS AS FOLLOWS :

CHAPTER I

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Object.

1. The object of this Act is to ensure

(1) the legal security of documentary communications between persons, associations, partnerships and the State, regardless of the medium used ;

(2) the coherence of legal rules and their application to documentary communications using media based on information technology, whether electronic, magnetic, optical, wireless or other, or based on a combination of technologies ;

(3) the functional equivalence and legal value of documents, regardless of the medium used, and the interchangeability of media and technologies ;

(4) the linking of a person, an association, a partnership or the State with a technology-based document, by any means allowing them to be linked, such as a signature, or any means allowing them to be identified and, if need be, located, such as certification ; and

(5) concerted action for the harmonization of the technical systems, norms and standards involved in communications by means of technology-based documents and interoperability between different media and information technologies.

Medium or technology.

2. Except where a document is required by law to be in a specific medium or technology, any medium or technology may be used, provided the medium or technology chosen is in compliance with legal rules, in particular those contained in the Civil Code.

Interchangeability.

Hence, media used to inscribe documentary information are interchangeable and a requirement that a document be in writing does not entail the use of a specific medium or technology.

CHAPTER IIDOCUMENTS*DIVISION I*CONCEPT OF DOCUMENT

- Document. 3. Information inscribed on a medium constitutes a document. The information is delimited and structured, according to the medium used, by tangible or logical features and is intelligible in the form of words, sounds or images. The information may be rendered using any type of writing, including a system of symbols that may be transcribed into words, sounds or images or another system of symbols.
- Database. For the purposes of this Act, a database whose structuring elements allow the creation of documents by delimiting and structuring the information contained in the database is considered to be a document.
- Record. A record may comprise one or more documents.
- Technology-based document. In this Act, a technology-based document is a document in any medium based on any information technology referred to in paragraph 2 of section 1.
- Fragmented information. 4. A technology-based document, even when the information it contains is fragmented and dispersed in one or more media at one or more locations, is considered to form a whole if its logical structuring elements allow the fragments to be connected, directly or by reference, and if such elements ensure both the integrity of each fragment and the integrity of the document reconstituted as it existed prior to its fragmentation and dispersal.
- Separate documents. Conversely, separate technology-based documents, even when combined into a single document for transmission or retention purposes, do not lose their distinct nature, if logical structuring elements ensure both the integrity of the combined document and the integrity of each separate reconstituted document.

DIVISION IILEGAL VALUE AND INTEGRITY OF DOCUMENTS

- Legal value. 5. The legal value of a document, particularly its capacity to produce legal effects and its admissibility as evidence, is neither increased nor diminished solely because of the medium or technology chosen.
- Legal value. A document whose integrity is ensured has the same legal value whether it is a paper document or a document in any other medium, insofar as, in the case of a technology-based document, it otherwise complies with the legal rules applicable to paper documents.

- Admissibility. A document in a medium or based on technology that does not allow its integrity to be confirmed or denied may, depending on the circumstances, be admissible as testimonial evidence or real evidence and serve as commencement of proof, as provided for in article 2865 of the Civil Code.
- Requirement. Where the law requires the use of a document, the requirement may be met by a technology-based document whose integrity is ensured.
- Integrity. 6. The integrity of a document is ensured if it is possible to verify that the information it contains has not been altered and has been maintained in its entirety, and that the medium used provides stability and the required perennity to the information.
- Life cycle. The integrity of a document must be maintained throughout its life cycle, from creation, in the course of transfer, consultation and transmission, during retention and until archiving or destruction.
- Security measures. To assess the integrity of a document, particular account must be taken of the security measures applied to protect the document throughout its life cycle.
- Proof. 7. It is not necessary to prove that the medium of a document or that the processes, systems or technology used to communicate by means of a document ensure its integrity, unless the person contesting the admission of the document establishes, upon a preponderance of evidence, that the integrity of the document has been affected.
- Government order. 8. The Government may, on the basis of technical norms or standards approved by a recognized body referred to in section 68, make an order prescribing that a device is capable of fulfilling a determined function.
- Proof not required. Where a device, its function and the norm or standard used are specified in such an order, it is not necessary to prove that the device is capable of fulfilling the function.

DIVISION III

EQUIVALENCE OF DOCUMENTS USED FOR THE SAME FUNCTIONS

- Legal value. 9. Two or more documents in different media have the same legal value if they contain the same information, if the integrity of each document is ensured and if each document complies with the applicable legal rules. One document may be substituted for another and the documents may be used simultaneously or in alternation. In addition, all such documents may be used for the same purposes.
- Lost document. If a document is lost, another document may serve to reconstitute it.

- Differences. 10. The sole fact that documents containing the same information but in different media show differences in the way in which the information is stored or presented, or contain different information, whether visible or hidden, relating to the medium used or to security, shall not be considered as affecting the integrity of the documents.
- Differences. Similarly, differences relating to page numbering, the tangible or intangible nature of pages, format, recto or verso presentation, total or partial accessibility, and sequential or thematic information retrieval possibilities shall not be considered as affecting the integrity of the documents.
- Divergence. 11. In the event of a divergence between documents in different media or based on different technologies that purport to contain the same information, the document containing information that can be verified as being unaltered and maintained in its entirety shall prevail unless evidence to the contrary is adduced.
- Technology-based documents. 12. A technology-based document may fulfil the functions of an original. To that end, the integrity of the document must be ensured and, where the desired function is to establish
- (1) that the document is the source document from which copies are made, the components of the source document must be retained so that they may subsequently be used as a reference ;
 - (2) that the document is unique, its components or its medium must be structured by a process that makes it possible to verify that the document is unique, in particular through the inclusion of an exclusive or distinctive component or the exclusion of any form of reproduction ;
 - (3) that the document is the first form of a document linked to a person, its components or its medium must be structured by a process that makes it possible to verify that the document is unique, to identify the person with whom the document is linked and to maintain the link throughout the life cycle of the document.
- Technical norms and standards. For the purposes of subparagraphs 2 and 3 of the first paragraph, the processes must be based on technical norms and standards approved by a recognized body referred to in section 68.
- Functions. 13. Where the function of affixing a seal, signet, press, stamp or other instrument is
- (1) to preserve the integrity of a document or authenticate the document as an original, the purpose may be achieved, in the case of a technology-based document, by means of any process appropriate to the medium used ;
 - (2) to identify a person, an association, a partnership or the State, the purpose may be achieved, in the case of a technology-based document, according to the rules provided in subdivision 1 of Division II of Chapter III ;

(3) to protect the confidentiality of a document, the purpose may be achieved in the case of a technology-based document, according to the rules provided in section 34.

Processes.

14. As regards the form of a document, one or more processes may be used to fulfil the functions or achieve the purposes provided for in sections 12 and 13, making use of the characteristic features of the medium used.

Integrity of copies.

15. To ensure the integrity of a copy of a technology-based document, the copying process must offer a sufficient guarantee that it contains the same information as the source document.

Assessment of integrity.

To assess the integrity of a copy, account must be taken of the circumstances in which the copy was made and of whether it was made systematically and without interruption or by means of a process meeting the technical norms or standards approved by a recognized body referred to in section 68.

Characteristics of copies.

However, where it is necessary to establish that a document is a copy, it must include characteristics as to form allowing it to be recognized as a copy, such as an indication of the place and date on which the copy was generated, a statement that it is a copy, or any other characteristic.

Presumption.

The integrity of a copy generated by an enterprise within the meaning of the Civil Code or by the State shall be presumed in favour of third persons.

Certification.

16. Where a copy of a technology-based document must be certified, the requirement may be met by means of a comparison process that verifies that the information in the copy is identical to the information in the source document.

DIVISION IV

MAINTENANCE OF INTEGRITY OF DOCUMENTS THROUGHOUT LIFE CYCLE

§1. — Transfer of information

Transfer of information.

17. The information contained in an original document or a copy that must be retained for evidential purposes may be transferred to another medium based on a different technology.

Transfer documentation.

However, subject to section 20, in order for the source document to be destroyed and replaced by the document resulting from the transfer without compromising legal value, the transfer must be documented so that it may be shown, if need be, that the resulting document contains the same information as the source document and that its integrity is ensured.

References.

Transfer documentation must include a reference to the original format of the source document, the transfer process used and the guarantees it purports to offer, according to the specifications provided with the product, as regards the integrity of the source document, if it is not destroyed, and the integrity of the resulting document.

Requirement.

The documentation, including that pertaining to any previous transfer, must be retained throughout the life cycle of the resulting document. The documentation may be attached, directly or by reference, to the resulting document, to its structuring elements or to the medium.

Admissibility of document.

18. If the source document is destroyed, no rules of evidence may be invoked against the admissibility of a document resulting from a transfer effected and documented in conformity with section 17 to which the documentation referred to in that section is attached, on the sole ground that the document is not in its original form.

§2. — Retention of documents

Integrity.

19. Every person must, during the period a document is required to be retained, ensure that its integrity is maintained and see to it that equipment is available to make the document accessible and intelligible and usable for the purposes for which it is intended.

Destruction of documents.

20. Documents that are required by law to be retained and that have been transferred may be destroyed and replaced by the documents resulting from the transfer. However, before such documents may be destroyed, the person responsible must

(1) unless the person is an individual, establish and update rules to be applied prior to the destruction for transferred documents;

(2) make sure that any confidential personal information contained in the documents to be destroyed is protected; and

(3) make sure that the documents, if in the possession of the State or of a legal person established in the public interest, are destroyed in accordance with the retention schedule established under the Archives Act (R.S.Q., chapter A-21.1).

Original medium.

However, a document which, in its original medium, has archival, historical or heritage value according to the criteria established under paragraph 1 of section 69 must be preserved in its original medium even if it has been transferred.

Modifications.

21. If a technology-based document is modified during its retention period, the person having the authority to make the modification must, in order to preserve the integrity of the document, record the name of the person having requested the modification, the time and reason for the modification and the name of the person having made the modification. The modification forms an integral part of the document even if it is recorded in a separate document.

Intermediary. 22. A service provider, acting as an intermediary, that provides document storage services on a communication network is not responsible for the activities engaged in by a service user with the use of documents stored by the service user or at the service user's request.

Illicit activities. However, the service provider may incur responsibility, particularly if, upon becoming aware that the documents are being used for an illicit activity, or of circumstances that make such a use apparent, the service provider does not act promptly to block access to the documents or otherwise prevent the pursuit of the activity.

Referral services. Similarly, an intermediary that provides technology-based documentary referral services, such as an index, hyperlinks, directories or search tools, is not responsible for activities engaged in by a user of such services. However, the service provider may incur responsibility, particularly if, upon becoming aware that the services are being used for an illicit activity, the service provider does not act promptly to cease providing services to the persons known by the service provider to be engaging in such an activity.

§3. — Consultation of documents

Intelligibility. 23. Every document to which a person has a right of access must be intelligible, either directly or through the use of information technology.

Right of access. A right of access may be satisfied by access to a copy of the document or to a document resulting from a transfer or a copy thereof.

Selection of medium or technology. The wishes of the person having the right of access as to the medium or technology to be used must be taken into account, unless substantial practical difficulties would be involved, owing in particular to high cost or the information transfer required.

Extensive search functions. 24. The use of extensive search functions in a technology-based document containing personal information which is made public for a specific purpose must be restricted to that purpose. The person responsible for access to the document must see to it that appropriate technological means are in place to achieve that end. The person may also set conditions for the use of such search functions, in accordance with the criteria determined under paragraph 2 of section 69.

Confidential information. 25. The person responsible for access to a technology-based document containing confidential information must take appropriate security measures to protect its confidentiality, such as controlling access to the document by means of a restricted view technique, or any technique that prevents unauthorized persons from accessing such information or from otherwise accessing the document or the components providing access to the document.

Custody of documents. 26. Anyone who places a technology-based document in the custody of a service provider is required to inform the service provider beforehand as to the privacy protection required by the document according to the confidentiality of the information it contains, and as to the persons who are authorized to access the document.

Security and integrity of document.

During the period the document is in the custody of the service provider, the service provider is required to see to it that the agreed technological means are in place to ensure its security and maintain its integrity and, if applicable, protect its confidentiality and prevent accessing by unauthorized persons. Similarly, the service provider must ensure compliance with any other obligation provided for by law as regards the retention of the document.

Intermediary.

27. A service provider, acting as an intermediary, that provides communication network services or who stores or transmits technology-based documents on a communication network is not required to monitor the information communicated on the network or contained in the documents or to identify circumstances indicating that the documents are used for illicit activities.

Measures.

However, the service provider may not take measures to prevent the person responsible for access to documents from exercising his or her functions, in particular as regards confidentiality, or to prevent the competent authorities from exercising their functions, in accordance with the applicable legislative provisions, as regards public security or the prevention, detection, proof and prosecution of offences.

§4. — Transmission of documents

Transmission of document.

28. A document may be transmitted, sent or forwarded by any means appropriate to the medium, unless the exclusive use of a specific means of transmission is required by law.

Mail.

Where the law requires the use of mail, the requirement may be met by means of the technology appropriate to the medium of the document. Similarly, where the law requires the use of certified or registered mail, the requirement may be met, in the case of a technology-based document, by means of an acknowledgement of receipt in the appropriate medium signed by the recipient, or by any other agreed method.

Addresses.

Where the law requires the transmission or reception of a document at a specific address, the address shall comprise, in the case of a technology-based document, an identifier specific to the location where the recipient may receive communication of such document.

Medium.

29. A person may not be required to acquire a specific medium or technology to transmit or receive a document, unless such requirement is expressly provided by law or by an agreement.

Medium.

Similarly, no person may be required to receive a document in a medium other than paper, or by means of technology that is not at the person's disposal.

- Medium. A product or service, or information on a product or service, that is available in more than one medium, may be obtained in any such medium, at the option of the recipient of the product or service.
- Transmission. 30. For the technology-based document received to have the same value as the document transmitted, the means of transmission must allow the integrity of both documents to be preserved. Documentation establishing the ability of a means of transmission to preserve the integrity of both documents must be available for production as evidence.
- Integrity. The sole fact that a document is fragmented, compressed or stored during its transmission for a limited time to improve the efficiency of the transmission does not entail the conclusion that the its integrity has been affected.
- Presumption. 31. A technology-based document is presumed transmitted, sent or forwarded where the action required to send it to the active address of the recipient has been accomplished by or on the instructions of the sender, and the transmission cannot be stopped or, although it can be stopped, is not stopped by or on the instructions of the sender.
- Presumption. A technology-based document is presumed received or delivered where it becomes accessible at the address indicated by the recipient as the address where the recipient accepts the receipt of documents from the sender, or at the address that the recipient publicly represents as the address where the recipient accepts the receipt of documents, provided the address is active at the time of sending. The document received is presumed intelligible, unless notice to the contrary is sent to the sender as soon as the document is accessed.
- Transmission slip. The time of sending or of receipt of a document may be established by producing a transmission slip or an acknowledgement of receipt or the information kept with the document providing it guarantees the date, hour, minute and second of sending or receipt and indicates the source and destination of the document, or by any other agreed method that provides the same guarantees.
- Multiple copies. 32. Where the law requires that two or more copies of a document be transmitted, sent, forwarded, remitted or delivered to one and the same recipient, the requirement may be met, in respect of a technology-based document transmittable on a communication network, by the transmission of a single copy.
- Presumption. 33. A presumption of document integrity exists in favour of a third person who generates a copy of a document of an enterprise, within the meaning of the Civil Code, or a document in the State's possession by means of a system or from a document, including a program, placed at the person's disposal by the enterprise or the State.
- Confidentiality. 34. Where the information contained in a document is declared by law to be confidential, confidentiality must be protected by means appropriate to the mode of transmission, including on a communication network.

- Documentation. Documentation explaining the agreed mode of transmission, including the means used to protect the confidentiality of the transmitted document, must be available for production as evidence.
- Errors. 35. A party that offers a product or service by means of a pre-programmed document must, on pain of non-enforceability of the communication or cancellation of the transaction, see to it that the document provides instructions that allow users to promptly advise the party of any errors or contains means that allow users to avoid or correct errors. Similarly, users must be provided instructions or means to avoid receiving unwanted products or services because of an ordering error, or instructions for the return or destruction of unwanted products.
- Intermediary. 36. A service provider, acting as an intermediary, that provides communication network services exclusively for the transmission of technology-based documents is not responsible for acts of service users performed with the use of the documents transmitted or stored during the normal course of the transmission for the time required for the efficiency of the transmission.
- Responsibility. However, the service provider may incur responsibility, particularly if the service provider otherwise participates in acts performed by service users
- (1) by being the sender of a document ;
 - (2) by selecting or altering the information in a document ;
 - (3) by determining who transmits, receives or has access to a document ; or
 - (4) by storing a document longer than is necessary for its transmission.
- Intermediary. 37. A service provider, acting as an intermediary, which, as part of transmission services provided via a communication network, maintains technology-based documents furnished by clients on that network for the sole purpose of ensuring the efficiency of their subsequent transmission to persons having a right to access the information, is not responsible for acts of service users performed with the use of those documents.
- Responsibility. However, the service provider may incur responsibility, particularly if the service provider otherwise participates in acts performed by service users
- (1) as specified in the second paragraph of section 36 ;
 - (2) by not complying with the conditions for access to a document ;
 - (3) by preventing the verification of who has accessed a document ;
 - (4) by failing to withdraw a document from the network or to block access to the document after becoming aware that the document has been withdrawn from its initial position on the network, that persons having the right to access the document are unable to do so or that a competent authority has ordered that the document be withdrawn from the network or that access to the document be blocked.

CHAPTER III

ESTABLISHMENT OF LINK WITH TECHNOLOGY-BASED DOCUMENTS

DIVISION I

CHOOSING A LINKING PROCESS

Linking process.

38. The link between a person and a technology-based document, or the link between such a document and an association, a partnership or the State, may be established by any process or combination of processes, to the extent that it allows

(1) the identity of the person or the identification of the association, partnership or the State and, where applicable, their location, to be confirmed, and allows their link with the document to be confirmed; and

(2) the document to be identified and, if need be, allows its origin and destination at any given time to be determined.

Signature.

39. The link between a person and a document, whatever the medium used, may be established by means of the person's signature. A person's signature may be affixed to the document by means of any process that meets the requirements of article 2827 of the Civil Code.

Signature.

A person's signature affixed to a technology-based document may be set up against that person if the integrity of the document is ensured and the link between the signature and the document was established at the time of signing and has since been maintained.

DIVISION II

MODES OF IDENTIFICATION AND LOCATION

§1. — Persons, associations, partnerships or the State

Confirmation of identity.

40. A person who, following verification, is able to confirm the identity of a person or the identification of an association, a partnership or the State may do so by means of any document, such as a certificate, whose integrity is ensured. The document may be transmitted in any medium provided confidential information is protected.

- Verification. A person's identity or an entity's identification must be verified in compliance with the law. It may be verified by reference to the registers kept pursuant to the Civil Code or the Act respecting the legal publicity of sole proprietorships, partnerships and legal persons (R.S.Q., chapter P-45), regardless of the medium used to communicate. A person's identity may also be verified on the basis of the person's characteristics or knowledge of certain facts or of the objects in the person's possession.
- Verification. The verification may be carried out by or for a person on the premises or by remote access, by direct observation or by means of such documents whose integrity is ensured as may be available in different media for consultation on the premises or by remote access.
- Personal characteristics. 41. The use, as proof of one's identity or the identity of another person, of a technology-based document specifying a personal characteristic or a particular fact or indicating that the person to be identified possesses a particular object requires that the integrity of the document be preserved.
- Protection. Such a document must, in addition, be protected from interception if its storage or transmission on a communication network makes it possible to usurp the identity of the person referred to in the document. Its confidentiality must be protected, where applicable, and its consultation must be logged.
- Identification. 42. Where an attestation, card, certificate, identity document or other document is required by law to identify a person, the requirement may be met by means of a technology-based document in a medium appropriate to the medium of the document.
- Physical integrity. 43. A person may not be required to submit, for identification purposes, to a process or device that affects the person's physical integrity.
- Restriction. Unless otherwise expressly provided by law for health protection or public security reasons, a person may not be required to be connected to a device that allows the person's whereabouts to be known.
- Biometric characteristics. 44. A person's identity may not be verified or confirmed by means of a process that allows biometric characteristics or measurements to be recorded, except with the express consent of the person concerned. Where consent is obtained, only the minimum number of characteristics or measurements needed to link the person to an act and only such characteristics or measurements as may not be recorded without the person's knowledge may be recorded for identification purposes.
- Prohibition. No other information revealed by the characteristics or measurements recorded may be used as a basis for a decision concerning the person or for any other purpose whatsoever. Such information may only be disclosed to the person concerned, at the person's request.

- Records. The record of the characteristics or measurements and any notation relating thereto must be destroyed as soon as the purpose of verification or confirmation of identity has been met or the reason for the verification or confirmation no longer exists.
- Database. 45. The creation of a database of biometric characteristics and measurements must be disclosed beforehand to the Commission d'accès à l'information. As well, the existence of such a database, whether or not it is in service, must be disclosed to the Commission.
- Orders of the Commission. The Commission may make orders determining how such databases are to be set up, used, consulted, released and retained, and how measurements or characteristics recorded for personal identification purposes are to be archived or destroyed.
- Suspension or prohibition. The Commission may also suspend or prohibit the bringing into service or order the destruction of such a database, if the database is not in compliance with the orders of the Commission or otherwise constitutes an invasion of privacy.
- §2. — Documents and other objects
- Identifier. 46. Where a document used for a network communication must be retained for evidential purposes, the person responsible for the document must store the identifier of the document with the document throughout its life cycle.
- Accessibility. The identifier of the document must be accessible through a directory service, capable of linking an identifier with its location. The link between an identifier and an object may be guaranteed by a certificate which is itself accessible through a directory service that may be consulted by the public.
- Reference name. The identifier shall comprise a reference name that is unique and unambiguous within the set of local names where it is registered, along with the necessary extensions to link the name to sets of universal names.
- Identification of other objects. To allow the origin or destination of a document at any given time to be established, the other objects used to transmit the document, such as certificates, algorithms and originating and receiving servers, must be identifiable and locatable by means of the identifiers assigned to each.

DIVISION III

CERTIFICATION

§1. — Certificates and directories

- Certificate. 47. A certificate may be used to establish one or more facts including the confirmation of a person's identity, the identification of a partnership, an association or the State, the correctness of the identifier of a document or other object, the attributes of a person, document or other object or the link between a document or other object and a tangible or logical identification or location device.

Attribute certificate.

An attribute certificate may be used to certify a person's function, capacity, rights, and powers or privileges within a legal person, association, partnership or the State or within a position of employment. An attribute certificate may be used to certify the location of an association, or partnership or of a location where the State sends or receives documents. An attribute certificate may also be used to confirm the information used to identify or locate a document or object or determine the use of or the right of access to a document or object or any other right or privilege relating to a document or object.

Authorization.

Access to a personal attribute certificate must be authorized by the person concerned or by a person having authority over the person concerned.

Accessibility.

48. A certificate may be attached directly to another document used in a communication or be made accessible through a directory that is itself accessible to the public.

Content.

A certificate must contain, at least, the following information :

(1) the distinctive name and the signature of the issuing certification service provider ;

(2) a reference to the policy statement of the certification service provider, including its practices, on which the guarantees offered by the certificate are based ;

(3) the certificate version and the serial number of the certificate ;

(4) the dates of the beginning and end of the valid period of the certificate ;

(5) in the case of a certificate confirming the identity of a person or the identification of an association, a partnership or the State, the distinctive name of the person or entity or, in the case of a certificate confirming the identifier of an object, that identifier ; and

(6) in the case of an attribute certificate, the designation of the attribute confirmed by the certificate and, if need be, the identification of the person, association, partnership, State or object to which it is linked.

Pseudonym.

The distinctive name of a natural person may be a pseudonym, but the certificate must indicate if that is the case. Certification service providers are required to communicate the name of the person using the pseudonym to any person legally authorized to obtain that information.

Identification of acting entity.

49. Where a legal person, an association, a partnership or the State acts through an authorized natural person, the certificate confirming its identification must indicate who is acting. Failing such indication, the natural person must attach one or more certificates confirming such fact.

Constitution of directory.

50. A directory whose function is to identify or locate a person or object, to confirm the identification of or locate an association, a partnership or the State, to locate a place where the State sends or receives documents, or to establish a link between any such entity and an object, must be constituted in accordance with the technical norms or standards approved by a recognized body referred to in section 68.

Accessibility.

The directory must be accessible to the public, either directly or by means of a device for consultation on the premises or by remote access, or by means of a procedure or through an intermediary, that can access various domains of a network where confirmation of the validity of an identifier, a certificate or any other information included in the directory may be obtained.

Accessibility.

However, the reason for the suspension or cancellation of a certificate is accessible only on the authorization of the person having suspended or cancelled it.

§2. — Certification and directory services

Provision of services.

51. Certification and directory services may be provided by a person or by the State.

Certification services.

Certification services involve verifying the identity of persons and issuing certificates confirming personal identity, the identification of an association, a partnership or the State or the correctness of an object identifier. Directory services involve entering certificates and identifiers in a directory that is accessible to the public and confirming the validity of the certificates contained in the directory and their link with the information they confirm.

Service provider.

A service provider may offer all or some of these services.

Policy statement.

52. The policy statement of a certification or directory service provider must specify, at least,

(1) what information may be entered in a certificate or a directory and what information is confirmed as accurate by a certificate, as well as the guarantees of accuracy offered by the service provider;

(2) the information review intervals and the updating procedure;

(3) who may be issued a certificate and who may cause information to be entered in a certificate or a directory;

(4) any restrictions on the use of certificates and directory entries, including a limit on the value of the transactions for which they may be used;

(5) how it can be determined, upon making a communication, whether a certificate or information entered in a certificate or in a directory is valid, suspended, cancelled or stored;

(6) how additional available information not yet entered in the certificate or the directory, especially as regards updated use restrictions applicable to certificates, may be obtained;

(7) the confidentiality policy applicable to information received or communicated by the service provider;

(8) the complaints procedure; and

(9) how certificates will be disposed of by the service provider upon ceasing to operate or becoming bankrupt.

Accessibility. The policy statement of a certification or directory service provider must be accessible to the public.

Accreditation scheme. 53. A certification service provider may join a voluntary accreditation scheme. Accreditation shall be granted, subject to satisfaction of the requirements of paragraph 3 of section 69, by a person or body designated by the Government.

Presumption. The same criteria are applicable regardless of the territory of origin of the service provider. Certificates issued by an accredited service provider are presumed to meet the requirements of this Act.

Certificates. 54. Certificates issued by a certification service provider on the basis of standards other than those applicable in Québec may be considered to be equivalent to certificates issued by an accredited certification service provider. Their equivalency must be recognized by the person or body designated by the Government for the purpose of concluding mutual recognition agreements with the designated authority having established the standards. The same applies to directory services.

Public register. A public register of all accredited service providers, or service providers whose services are recognized as equivalent to those provided by an accredited service provider, shall be kept by the accrediting person or body or by the person or body that recognizes equivalency.

Accreditation. 55. To decide whether an accreditation may be granted or renewed, account must be taken of the information contained in the proposed policy statement and at least of

(1) whether the applicant's identity has been established;

(2) the extent of the applicant's expertise, the existing infrastructure, the services offered and the regularity and extent of audits;

(3) the availability of financial guarantees for the proposed activity ;

(4) the guarantees offered as to the independence and probity of the applicant and the policy established by the applicant to guarantee the expertise and probity of the persons dispensing the services ;

(5) the guarantees offered as to directory or certificate integrity, accessibility and security ; and

(6) the applicability of the stated policies and, in the case of a renewal, the implementation of the policies, and the fulfilment of the other obligations of a service provider.

Guarantees of impartiality.

56. A certification service provider must offer guarantees of impartiality towards any person or object that is the subject of a certification, even if the service provider is not a third person in relation to the person or object.

Integrity.

The service provider must ensure the integrity of certificates throughout their life cycle, including when they are modified, suspended, cancelled or archived and when the information they contain is updated.

Confirmation of link.

In addition, the service provider must be able to confirm the link between the tangible or logical identification or location device and the person, association, partnership, State or object identified or located by means of the device.

False representation.

The issue of a document represented to be a certificate confirming the identity of a person, the identification of an association, a partnership or the State or the correctness of an object identifier, where no verification has been carried out by or for the service provider or where the verification was so insufficient as to constitute an absence of verification, is false representation.

Confidentiality.

57. Where the certification applies to the holder of a tangible or logical device that allows the holder to be identified or located or one of the holder's attributes to be specified and where the device contains a secret element, the holder must protect its confidentiality. Where the secret element must be transmitted to the holder of the device, the transmission must be done in such a manner that only the holder of the device is informed thereof.

Presumption.

The holder of the device must see to it that the device is not used without authorization. Every use of the device is presumed to be made by the holder of the device.

Device stolen or lost.

58. The holder of a device who has reasonable grounds to believe that the device has been stolen or lost or that its confidentiality is at risk must, as soon as practicable, advise

(1) any person the holder has authorized to use the device ;

(2) any third person who may reasonably be expected to act on the basis of the fact that the device was used by a person authorized to use it; and

(3) the certification service provider so that the certificate linked to the device may be suspended or cancelled.

Obligation. An authorized person is bound by the same obligation to advise the holder of the device and the persons referred to in subparagraphs 2 and 3.

Prohibition. No person may use a tangible or logical device to sign a document after learning that the certificate issued for the device has been suspended or cancelled.

Obligation. 59. A person who provides information in order to be issued a certificate is bound to inform the certification service provider, as soon as practicable, of any change affecting the information.

Obligation. Where the information for the issue of a certificate was provided under a mandate, a service contract or a contract of enterprise, the certificate holder is bound by the same obligation to provide information to the certification service provider.

Verification. 60. When a technology-based document is to be used in a communication, the validity and scope of the certificate must be verified before the certificate may be relied upon, in order to obtain confirmation of the identity or identification of any party to the communication or of the correctness of an object identifier.

Confirmation. Similarly, before the information contained in the certificate is relied upon, it is necessary to verify whether the accuracy of the information is confirmed by the certification service provider.

Verification. The verification may be made in the directory or at the place indicated in the directory or with the service provider by means of a device for consultation on the premises or by remote access.

Diligence. 61. The certification and directory service providers, the holder of a certificate and any person who relies on a certificate to act are, in respect of their obligations under this Act, bound by an obligation of diligence.

Liability. 62. Where a transaction is carried out by means of a technology-based document supported by a certificate appropriate to the transaction, in accordance with subparagraphs 4 and 6 of the first paragraph of section 52, each of the persons referred to in section 61 is liable for any damage resulting from the inaccuracy or invalidity of the certificate or of any information contained in the directory, unless the person shows that he or she has committed no fault in the performance of his or her obligations. Where two or more of them are liable, the obligation to provide reparation for the damage is a joint obligation; if liability cannot be apportioned, it is apportioned equally among them. In addition, if there is no fault on the part of any of those persons, reparation for the damage shall be provided by them jointly and equally.

Liability. None of those persons may refuse to assume liability under this section.

CHAPTER IV

ESTABLISHMENT OF TECHNOLOGICAL AND LEGAL INFRASTRUCTURES

DIVISION I

HARMONIZATION OF TECHNICAL SYSTEMS, NORMS AND STANDARDS

Harmonization committee.

63. A multidisciplinary committee shall be formed to promote the harmonization, both at the national and international levels, of the technical processes, systems, norms and standards established for the purposes of this Act. To that end, the Government shall, after consultation with the Bureau de normalisation du Québec, call upon persons from the business community, the information technology industry and the scientific and technical community, persons from the public, parapublic and municipal sectors and persons belonging to the professional orders, all of whom must have expertise in the field of information technology.

Chair.

The committee shall be chaired by a representative of the Bureau de normalisation du Québec. The committee may call upon other persons having expertise in the field of information technology. The secretariat of the committee is the responsibility of the Bureau.

Remuneration.

The members of the committee shall receive no remuneration, except in such cases, on such conditions and to such extent as may be determined by the Government. They are, however, entitled to the reimbursement of expenses incurred in the exercise of their functions, on the conditions and to the extent determined by the Government.

Mission.

64. The mission of the harmonization committee is to examine ways to

(1) ensure the compatibility of or interoperability between different media and technologies, and the harmonization of technical norms and standards for the production and signature of technology-based documents and their use in communications ;

(2) avert the multiplication of processes, in particular as regards the verification of personal identity ;

(3) promote the standardization of certificates and directories and the mutual recognition of certificates ;

(4) guarantee the integrity of technology-based documents through physical, logical or operational security measures and document management measures capable of ensuring the integrity of documents throughout their life cycle ;

(5) standardize auditing practices, including the examination and evaluation of accessing, maintenance and backup methods, physical, logical and operational security measures, security registers and correctives in the event of a deficiency that may affect the integrity of documents ; and

(6) facilitate the application of this Act, making appropriate recommendations.

Practical guidelines. 65. The committee shall develop practical guidelines reflecting the consensus reached on the subjects referred to in section 64.

Technical standards. The guidelines shall determine the common technical standards selected, such as formats and mark-up language, character representation codes, signature algorithms, encryption methods, data compression, image and audio enhancement, key length, and communications protocols or links. The selection must be made for a specific period ; it may be extended, or a new selection may be made before or upon the expiry of the determined period. However, the guidelines must specify that any new selection must provide for the retention period of documents based on the previous selections and the need for continued access to those documents throughout their retention period.

Publication. The guidelines shall be published and updated by the Bureau de normalisation du Québec.

Report. 66. The Bureau shall report annually to the Minister on the proceedings of the harmonization committee and on the voluntary implementation of the guidelines.

Copy. Within 30 days after receiving the report, the Minister shall forward a copy to the Government and shall lay the report before the National Assembly within the next 30 days or, if the Assembly is not in session, within 30 days of resumption.

Regulatory provisions. 67. If the guidelines are not implemented voluntarily in whole or in part, the Government may, after consultation with the committee, substitute regulatory provisions for the guidelines.

Recognition. 68. Where this Act requires that a technical process, norm or standard be approved by a recognized body to establish that it is capable of fulfilling a specific function, the recognition may be given by

(1) the International Electrotechnical Commission (IEC), the International Organization for Standardization (ISO) or the International Telecommunication Union (ITU) ;

(2) the Standards Council of Canada or a body accredited by that Council ; or

(3) the Bureau de normalisation du Québec.

Reference.

The recognition may include a reference to a process or documentation developed by an experts group, such as the Internet Engineering Task Force or the World Wide Web Consortium.

DIVISION II

REGULATORY POWERS OF THE GOVERNMENT

Regulations.

69. In addition to such substitute standards as may be prescribed under section 67, the Government may make regulations determining

(1) criteria for the recognition of the archival, historical or heritage value of a document in its original medium ;

(2) criteria for the use of extensive search functions in respect of personal information contained in technology-based documents that are made public for a specific purpose ;

(3) the accreditation procedure applicable to certification service providers, the requirements and waiting period for accreditation and for a modification of accreditation conditions, the requirements for accreditation renewal and the conditions that can lead to the suspension or cancellation of accreditation, and the related fees ; and

(4) so as to ensure the security of documentary communications and if the Government is of the opinion that it is required in the public interest, the cases warranting and the conditions applicable to the use of a specific medium or technology.

CHAPTER V

INTERPRETATION AND AMENDING AND FINAL PROVISIONS

Rights.

70. No provision of this Act shall be construed as limiting rights existing at the time it comes into force.

Legal value.

Similarly, no provision of this Act shall be construed as affecting the legal value of documentary communications effected before the date on which it comes into force.

Interpretation.

71. The concept of document, as used in this Act, is applicable to all documents referred to in legislative texts whether by the term “document” or by terms such as act, deed, record, annals, schedule, directory, order, order in council, ticket, directory, licence, bulletin, notebook, map, catalogue, certificate, charter, cheque, statement of offence, decree, leaflet, drawing, diagram, writing, electrocardiogram, audio, video or electronic recording, bill, sheet, film, form, graph, guide, illustration, printed matter, newspaper, book, booklet, program, manuscript, model, microfiche, microfilm, note, notice, pamphlet, parchment, papers, photograph, minute, programme, prospectus, report, offence report, manual and debt security or title of indebtedness.

- Excerpts. In this Act, the rules relating to documents may, depending on context, apply to an excerpt from a document or to a set of documents.
- Provisions applicable. 72. Subparagraph 1 of the first paragraph of section 12 applies where the terms “duplicate”, “copy”, “original copy” and “triplicate” are used in a legislative text in a context that indicates that the document to which they refer must fulfil the function of an original as the source document from which copies are made.
- Provisions applicable. 73. Section 16 applies to technology-based documents where the term “certified copy”, “certified true copy” or “authentic copy” is used in a legislative text, and where the term “collate”, “copy”, “duplicate”, “triplicate” or “authenticated” is used in connection with the issue of a copy.
- Means of transmission. 74. A reference in the law to the possibility of using one or more specific means of transmission such as sending by mail, by messenger, by cablegram or telegram, by fax, by telematic, computerized or electronic means, by way of telecommunication, teletransmission, fibre optics or any other information technology, does not preclude the use of another means of transmission appropriate to the medium of the document to be sent, provided the legislative provision does not require the exclusive use of a specific means of transmission.
- Signatures or marks. 75. Where it is provided by law that a signature may be engraved or printed or affixed by means of an engraved, printed or lithographed facsimile, or that a mark may be made by means of a signature stamp, device or mechanical or automatic process, it shall be construed as allowing a signature to be affixed on a paper document otherwise than by hand, or as allowing a personal mark to be affixed on a paper document by someone else. Such a provision does not preclude the use of another mode of signature appropriate to the document in a medium other than paper.
- Offences. 76. A provision creating an offence that specifies that the offence may be committed with the use of a document shall be construed as meaning that an offence may be committed whatever the medium of the document may have been, whether paper or any other, at any point in its life cycle.
- 1991, c. 64, a. 2827, am. 77. Article 2827 of the Civil Code of Québec (1991, chapter 64) is amended by replacing “on a writing” by “to a writing”.

“2837. A writing is a means of proof whatever the medium, unless the use of a specific medium or technology is required by law.

Where a writing is in a medium that is based on information technology, the writing is referred to as a technology-based document within the meaning of the Act to establish a legal framework for information technology.

“2838. In addition to meeting all other legal requirements, the integrity of a copy of a statute, an authentic writing, a semi-authentic writing or a private writing drawn up in a medium based on information technology must be ensured for it to be used to adduce proof in the same way as a writing of the same kind drawn up as a paper document.

“2839. The integrity of a document is ensured if it is possible to verify that the information it contains has not been altered and has been maintained in its entirety, and that the medium used provides stability and the required perennity to the information.

Where the medium or technology used does not allow the integrity of the document to be confirmed or denied, the document may, depending on the circumstances, be admitted as testimonial evidence or real evidence and serve as commencement of proof.

“2840. It is not necessary to prove that the medium of a document or that the processes, systems or technology used to communicate by means of a document ensure its integrity, unless the person contesting the admission of the document establishes, upon a preponderance of evidence, that the integrity of the document has been affected.

“SECTION VII“COPIES AND DOCUMENTS RESULTING FROM A TRANSFER

“2841. A document may be reproduced either by generating a copy in the same medium or in a medium that is based on the same technology, or by transferring the information contained in the document to a medium based on different technology.

Where it reproduces an original document or a technology-based document fulfilling the functions of an original as provided for in section 12 of the Act to establish a legal framework for information technology, a copy, provided it is certified, or a document resulting from the transfer of information, provided it is documented, may legally replace the reproduced document.

In the case of a document in the possession of the State, a legal person, a partnership or an association, certification is effected by a person in authority or the person responsible for document retention.

“2842. A certified copy is supported, if necessary, by a statement establishing the circumstances and the date of the reproduction, attesting that the copy contains the same information as the reproduced document and indicating the means used to ensure the integrity of the copy. The statement is made by the person responsible for document reproduction or by the person who reproduced the document.

A document resulting from the transfer of information is supported, if necessary, by the documentation referred to in section 17 of the Act to establish a legal framework for information technology.”

“§1.1. — Effect of the erection of certain non-agricultural buildings

Interpretation:

“79.2. For the purposes of sections 79.2 to 79.2.7,

- “livestock facility”; “livestock facility” means a building where animals are raised or an enclosure or a part of an enclosure where animals are kept for purposes other than pasture;
- “livestock unit”. “livestock unit” means the unit of measure of the number of animals that may be found in a livestock facility during a production cycle as determined by a regulation under section 79.2.7.
- “breeding unit”. For the purposes of these sections, a “breeding unit” is made up of a livestock facility or, where there is more than one facility, of all the livestock facilities in respect of which a point on the perimeter of one facility is less than 150 metres from the neighbouring livestock facility, and of storage works, if any, for the manure from the animals in the facility or facilities.
- “separation distance requirement”. For the purposes of these sections and section 98.1, “separation distance requirement” refers to any standard serving to delimit the open space that must be left in order to reduce the inconvenience caused by odours resulting from agricultural activities, and originating from the exercise of the powers provided for in subparagraph 4 of the second paragraph of section 113 of the Act respecting land use planning and development, or to any standard provided for in an Act or a regulation to take the place of such a standard.
- Building other than farm building. “79.2.1. In an agricultural zone, a building used or intended to be used for a purpose other than an agricultural purpose must not be erected or enlarged on the side facing the breeding unit whose siting would entail the greatest restriction on the potential for expanding the agricultural activities therein if the siting or enlargement of the building were taken into account in applying separation distance requirements. However, a municipality may not refuse to issue a building permit for the sole reason of non-compliance with that condition.
- Separation distance requirement applicable. Where, pursuant to the first paragraph, a point on the perimeter of such a building or its enlargement encroaches upon the space that, under separation distance requirements, must be left open between any neighbouring breeding unit, any separation distance requirement applicable at the time of the erection or enlargement of the building continues to apply to the expansion in agricultural activities of any neighbouring breeding unit without taking into account the siting of the building or its enlargement.
- Unauthorized residence. “79.2.2. Where the building referred to in section 79.2.1 is a residence erected without the authorization of the commission under section 40, after 21 June 2001, any agricultural use standards originating from the exercise of the powers provided for in subparagraph 3 of the second paragraph of section 113 of the Act respecting land use planning and development and any separation distance requirements apply to the neighbouring breeding units, without taking the siting of the residence into account.
- Erection of works. “79.2.3. If a manure storage works, another works aimed at reducing pollution or a works aimed at reducing the inconvenience caused by the odours from a breeding unit can only be erected by encroaching upon the space that must be left open under separation distance requirements, the erection is allowed notwithstanding the separation distance requirements so long as the works is not erected on the side facing the building used for a purpose other than an agricultural purpose whose siting would entail the greatest restriction on the potential for expanding the agricultural activities of that breeding unit if the separation distance requirements were taken into account.

“§1.2. — Potential of certain agricultural operations to expand activities

Applicability.

“79.2.4. This subdivision applies to agricultural operations registered in accordance with the Regulation respecting the registration of agricultural operations and the reimbursement of real estate taxes and compensations, made by Order in Council 340-97 (1997, G.O. 2, 1275), having at least one breeding unit that meets the following conditions on 21 June 2001 :

- (1) the agricultural operation contains at least one livestock unit; and
- (2) the livestock facilities that make up the breeding unit are used by the same operator.

Expansion.

“79.2.5. The agricultural activities of a breeding unit may be expanded, subject to any standard applicable in other respects pursuant to an Act or a regulation, if the following conditions are met :

- (1) the breeding unit was reported in accordance with section 79.2.6 ;
- (2) a point on the perimeter of every livestock facility and, where applicable, every manure storage works necessary to the expansion is less than 150 metres from the neighbouring livestock facility or storage works for manure from the breeding unit ;
- (3) the number of livestock units, as reported in the statement referred to in section 79.2.6 for that breeding unit, is increased by no more than 75, although the total number of livestock units resulting from the expansion in no case may exceed 225 ;
- (4) the odour coefficient of the categories or groups of new animals is not greater than the odour coefficient of the category or group of animals having the most livestock units ; and
- (5) the additional conditions, if any, prescribed by regulation of the Government under section 79.2.7 are complied with.

Restriction.

The expansion in agricultural activities in that breeding unit is, however, not subject to the following standards :

- (1) separation distance requirements ;

(2) agricultural use standards originating from the exercise of the powers provided for in subparagraph 3 of the second paragraph of section 113 of the Act respecting land use planning and development;

(3) standards originating from the exercise of the powers provided for in subparagraph 5 of the second paragraph of section 113 of that Act; however, the expansion continues to be subject to any such standard that concerns the open space which must be left between structures and the street and land boundaries.

Reporting.

“79.2.6. The reporting of a breeding unit referred to in section 79.2.5 is effected by the filing of a sworn statement by the operator of the breeding unit with the secretary-treasurer of the municipality in which the breeding unit is situated before 21 June 2002.

Sworn statement.

The sworn statement must indicate the name of the operator, the address of the premises on which the breeding unit is situated and a summary description of the livestock facilities and storage works that make up the breeding unit, the maximum number of livestock units for each category or group of animals raised or kept in the breeding unit in the 12 months preceding 21 June 2001 and a statement that the breeding unit was in operation on that date.

Regulation.

“79.2.7. The Government may, by regulation, prescribe other conditions applicable to the expansion in agricultural activities permitted under section 79.2.5 to reduce the inconvenience caused by odours resulting from agricultural activities.

Object.

The regulation must determine the animals to which this subdivision applies, and fix the number of animals equivalent to one livestock unit and the odour coefficient per category or group of animals.

Spreading or storing of manure.

The regulation may, in particular, prescribe, determine, prohibit, limit, and control practices, methods, equipment, processes or techniques as regards the spreading or storing of manure.

Standards or conditions.

In addition, the regulation may vary any standard or condition on the basis in particular of the number, category or group of animals concerned, types of manure, the odour coefficient attributed to a category or group of animals, geographical characteristics, the regions or municipalities concerned and periods of the year.

Mandatory standard.

The Government may, in the regulation, make mandatory a standard established by another government or body, and provide that a reference to such a standard includes any subsequent amendments made to it.

Enforcement.

Without restricting the powers of the Minister, the Government may specify in the regulation which sections of the regulation must be applied by one or more municipalities, and the municipalities must enforce or see to the enforcement of the regulation to that extent.”

Subject to section 10, the Société is authorized to issue shares without par value, carrying the rights defined in section 123.40 of the Companies Act (R.S.Q., chapter C-38), the right to elect two directors and the right of redemption defined in sections 12 and 14.
Issue of fractional shares.	The Société is also authorized, subject to section 10, to issue fractional shares without par value, carrying proportionately the same rights as shares, except the voting rights attached to such shares.
Total amount of subscription.	10. The total amount of the subscription for the issued and outstanding shares and fractional shares of the Société may not increase by more than 150 million dollars per year or exceed 1,500 million dollars.
Increase in amount of subscription.	However, if the increase in the total amount of the subscription for the issued and outstanding shares and fractional shares of the Société, for a particular year, is less than 150 million dollars, the amount of the difference for that year may be carried forward to a subsequent year without, however, the total amount of the subscription for the issued and outstanding shares and fractional shares exceeding the amount indicated for each of the years listed in Schedule 1.
Holder of shares.	11. Only a natural person may acquire or hold shares or fractional shares of the Société. The holder of shares or fractional shares may not alienate them and such shares or fractional shares, subject to section 123.56 of the Companies Act, may not be purchased by agreement by the Société, except with the authorization of the board of directors or a committee composed of persons designated by the board for that purpose.
Purchase by agreement.	The Société may purchase by agreement shares or fractional shares only in the cases and to the extent provided in a policy adopted by the board of directors and approved by the Minister of Finance and only at a price not exceeding the redemption price determined in accordance with section 15.
Redemption.	12. A share or fractional share is redeemable by the Société only in the following cases : <ul style="list-style-type: none"> (1) at the request of a person who acquired the share or fractional share from the Société at least 7 years prior to redemption ; (2) at the request of a person to whom the share or fractional share has devolved by succession ; (3) at the request of a person who acquired the share or fractional share from the Société, if the person applies to the Société therefor in writing within 30 days after subscribing for the share or fractional share ;

(4) at the request of a person who acquired the share or fractional share from the Société, if the person is declared, in the manner prescribed by by-law of the board of directors, to be suffering from a severe and permanent mental or physical disability which prevents the person from working.

Severe disability.

13. For the purposes of paragraph 4 of section 12, a disability is severe only if by reason thereof the person is regularly incapable of holding any substantially gainful occupation.

Severe disability.

However, in the case of a person 60 years of age or over, a disability is severe if by reason thereof the person is regularly incapable of carrying on the substantially gainful occupation the person held at the time he or she ceased to work owing to the disability.

Permanent disability.

A disability is permanent only if it is likely to result in death or to be of indefinite duration.

Redemption.

14. Subject to the second paragraph of section 123.54 of the Companies Act, the Société is bound to redeem any share or fractional share at the request of a person pursuant to section 12 of this Act.

Price of redemption.

15. The price of redemption of the shares or fractional shares shall be fixed by the board of directors twice a year, on dates six months apart, on the basis of the value of the Société as established by experts under the responsibility of an independent firm of chartered accountants and according to generally accepted accounting principles.

Price of redemption.

The board of directors may also fix the price of redemption referred to in the first paragraph at any other time in the year, on the basis of an internal valuation which, in each case, must be the subject of a special report of independent chartered accountants confirming continued adherence to the generally accepted accounting principles and methods used to value the Société.

Offer.

The Société may, however, accept the offer of a shareholder to receive the last price of redemption so determined rather than the subsequent one. The redemption shall be made within a reasonable time after the date of the request therefor.

Redemption.

However, in the case described in paragraph 3 of section 12, the Société is bound to redeem the share or fractional share at the price at which it was acquired from the Société and to make the payment not later than 30 days after the date of receipt of the request.

Written confirmation.

16. Each shareholder is entitled to receive written confirmation of the number of shares or fractional shares he or she holds and of the amount paid thereon.

- Annual confirmation. The confirmation shall be provided annually to the shareholder free of charge in the form and according to the procedure prescribed by by-law of the Société.
- Document. Where a mode of confirmation other than a share certificate is prescribed, the document sent to the shareholder stands in lieu of a certificate issued pursuant to section 53 of the Companies Act.
- Exchange of certificates. Moreover, at the request of the holder of fractional shares, the Société shall exchange the fractional share certificates, or documents standing in lieu thereof, for certificates, or documents standing in lieu thereof, representing the corresponding whole shares.

CHAPTER III INVESTMENTS

- “investment”. 17. For the purposes of this Act, an “investment” includes any financial assistance granted in the form of a loan, guarantee, security, the acquisition of bonds or other debt securities, an interest in share capital, capital stock or any other form.
- “eligible entity”. 18. For the purposes of this Act, “eligible entity” means
- (1) an eligible cooperative;
 - (2) a partnership or a legal person actively operating an enterprise, the majority of whose employees are resident in Québec and whose assets are less than $50,000,000 or whose net equity is not over $20,000,000, other than an eligible cooperative or a partnership or legal person whose activities consist mainly in investing.
- “eligible cooperative”. For the purposes of subparagraph 1 of the first paragraph, an “eligible cooperative” is a legal person governed by the Cooperatives Act (R.S.Q., chapter C-67.2) or a legal person governed by the Canada Cooperatives Act (Statutes of Canada, 1998, chapter 1) having its head office in Québec, or in respect of which half of the salaries paid to its employees, during its fiscal year ended before the date on which the investment is made, was paid to the employees of an establishment situated in Québec, and the legal persons controlled by one or several cooperatives or controlled by one or several cooperatives and the Société.
- Assets or net equity. For the purposes of subparagraph 2 of the first paragraph, the assets or net equity of an eligible entity are the assets or net equity shown in its financial statements for the fiscal year ended before the date on which the investment is made, minus the write-up surplus of its property and intangible assets. In the case of an entity which has not completed its first fiscal year, the fact that the assets or net equity, as the case may be, of the entity are, immediately before the investment, under the limits prescribed in this section must be confirmed in writing to the Société by a chartered accountant.

- Investments. 19. The Société may make investments, with or without a guarantee or security.
- Investments without security or hypothec. However, in the course of each fiscal year, the proportion of the Société's investments in eligible entities, entailing no security or hypothec, must represent, on the average, at least 60% of the average net assets of the Société for the preceding year, and of which a part representing at least 35% of that percentage must be invested in entities situated in the resource regions of Québec referred to in Schedule 2 or in eligible cooperatives.
- Determination of average net assets and investments. For the purposes of this section, the average net assets for the preceding fiscal year and the average investments for the current fiscal year shall be determined by adding the net assets or, as the case may be, the investments at the beginning of the years concerned, to the net assets or, as the case may be, to the investments at the end of the years concerned and by dividing each of the sums thus obtained by 2. Furthermore, net assets do not include the movable or immovable property used by the Société to carry on its operations.
- Eligible investments. For the application of the above requirement, the following investments are also eligible investments :
- (1) investments made otherwise than as first purchaser for the acquisition of securities issued by an eligible entity, except to the extent where they represent more than one third of the total investments made as first purchaser in that entity ;
- (2) investments made in addition to an investment already made in an entity where the investment is eligible under the second paragraph and where the entity would be an eligible entity under subparagraph 2 of the first paragraph of section 18 if the amounts "$50,000,000" and "$20,000,000" mentioned in that subparagraph were replaced by "$100,000,000" and "$40,000,000" respectively.
- Total investments. The total investments permitted under the fourth paragraph may not exceed 20% of the net assets of the Société at the end of the preceding fiscal year. For the purposes of subparagraph 1 of the fourth paragraph, a broker acting as an intermediary or underwriter is not considered to be a first purchaser.
- Computation of eligible investments. The investments the Société has agreed to make and for which sums have been committed but not yet disbursed at the end of a fiscal year shall be taken into account in computing investments eligible for the purposes of the requirements set out in this section, up to an overall sum not exceeding 12% of the net assets of the Société at the end of the preceding fiscal year.
- Applicability of requirements. The requirement set out in the second paragraph applies from the fiscal year beginning on 1 January 2006.
- Limit. 20. The Société may not make an investment in an entity that would cause the total amount of its investment in the entity and any other entity associated with it at that time to exceed 5% of the assets of the Société, as established on the basis of the latest valuation by the chartered accountants referred to in the first paragraph of section 15.

Increase.

The percentage may be increased up to 10% to enable the Société to acquire securities in an entity carrying on business in Québec but that is not an eligible entity within the meaning of section 18. In such a case, the Société may not, directly or indirectly, acquire or hold shares carrying more than 30% of the voting rights attached to the shares of the entity that may be exercised under any circumstances.

Time limit.

Where the Société avails itself of the second paragraph as regards an entity in which it already holds, directly or indirectly, shares carrying more than 30% of the voting rights attached to the shares of the entity that may be exercised under any circumstances, the Société has five years from the date of the investment to bring its shareholding in the entity into conformity with that paragraph.

Exceptions.

These restrictions do not apply, however, where the Société makes an investment in

(1) securities guaranteed by the Government of Québec or of Canada or a Canadian province or territory ;

(2) securities guaranteed by an undertaking made to a trustee by Québec to pay sufficient subsidies to pay the interest and principal on their respective maturity dates ;

(3) bills of exchange accepted or certified by a bank or financial institution registered with the Régie de l'assurance-dépôts du Québec.

Associated entities.

21. For the purposes of the first paragraph of section 20, an entity is associated with another entity at any time where those entities are, at that time, corporations associated with each other in accordance with the provisions of Chapter IX of Title II of Book I of Part I of the Taxation Act (R.S.Q., chapter I-3) and, for that purpose,

(1) an entity that is an individual carrying on an enterprise is deemed to carry on the enterprise through a corporation all of whose shares of the capital stock carrying voting rights belong to the individual at that time ;

(2) an entity that is a partnership is deemed to be a corporation all of whose shares of the capital stock carrying voting rights belong to each member of the partnership, at that time, in the proportion represented by the ratio between the share of the member in the income or loss of the partnership for the fiscal period ending on or before that time and the income or loss of the partnership for that fiscal period, assuming that if the income and loss of the partnership for that fiscal period are nil, the income of the partnership for that fiscal period is equal to $1,000,000 ;

(3) an entity that is a trust, within the meaning of section 1 of the Taxation Act, is deemed to be a corporation all of whose shares of the capital stock carrying voting rights belong to each beneficiary of the income, at that time, in the proportion represented by the ratio between the share of the beneficiary in the income or loss of the trust for its fiscal period ending on or before that time and the income or loss of the trust for that fiscal period, assuming, if the income and loss of the trust for that fiscal period are nil, that the income of the trust for that fiscal period is equal to $1,000,000.

- Reserve. 22. Where the Société makes an investment in the form of a guarantee or security, it shall establish and maintain for the term of the guarantee or security a reserve equivalent to not less than 50% of the amount of the guarantee or security.
- Investment. The Société may invest the money deposited in the reserve in the manner provided in paragraphs 2, 3, 4, 5 and 10 of article 1339 of the Civil Code.

CHAPTER IV LOANS

- Limit on loans. 23. The Société may not contract any loan that will cause the current principal of its total debt to exceed 100% of the total consideration paid for its shares or fractional shares.
- “total debt”. For the purposes of this section, “total debt” means the amount obtained by applying the following equation :

$$x = \text{the debt of the Société} + y^1 [\text{debt of any subsidiary of the Société} + y^2 (\text{debt of any subsidiary of the particular subsidiary of the Société})]$$ where

x = the total debt of the Société; and y^1 = the percentage of the shares carrying voting rights held, directly or indirectly, by the Société in the capital stock of its particular subsidiary; and y^2 = the percentage of the shares carrying voting rights held, directly or indirectly, by the particular subsidiary of the Société in the capital stock of the particular subsidiary of that subsidiary of the Société.

- Debt of subsidiary. Furthermore, the debt of a subsidiary does not include the principal of a loan granted to the subsidiary by the parent legal person, either directly or by subscription for any evidence of indebtedness.
- Applicability. This equation, with the necessary modifications, applies to any subsidiary of a subsidiary, in descending line.

CHAPTER VCONFLICTS OF INTEREST

- Prohibition. 24. The Société may not make an investment for the benefit of one of its senior executives, his or her spouse or a child of either.
- “Senior executive”. “Senior executive” has the meaning assigned by the Securities Act (R.S.Q., chapter V-1.1).
- Prohibition. 25. The Société may not invest in an entity in which a director referred to in paragraph 1, 2 or 4 of section 4 or a senior executive other than a director has a major or controlling interest.
- Major interest. 26. A person is considered to have a major interest in an entity if the person holds more than 10% of the stock or shares of the entity.
- Control. Such person is deemed to control an entity if the person holds securities enabling the person under all circumstances to elect a majority of its directors.
- Cancellation of contract. 27. Any contract made in contravention of section 24 or 25 may be cancelled within one year of the date on which it is made.
- Solidary liability. The senior executives of the Société who made the contract or consented thereto are solidarily liable for the resulting losses to the Société.
- Succession or gift. 28. A contract in contravention of section 24 or 25 is not subject to cancellation and the second paragraph of section 27 does not apply if the contravention results from the opening of a succession or from a gift and if the beneficiary renounces the property concerned or disposes of it with dispatch.

CHAPTER VIMISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

- Provisions applicable. 29. Notwithstanding section 125 of the Companies Act, the provisions of that Act which are applicable to legal persons constituted by the filing of articles, with the necessary modifications, apply to the Société where they are not inconsistent with this Act, except the second paragraph of section 46, paragraph 1 of section 53, sections 54, 123.9 to 123.11, 123.22 to 123.24, 123.26, 123.27, 123.27.1 to 123.27.6, 123.55, 123.72, 123.82, 123.91 to 123.93, 123.95, 123.96, 123.98 to 123.100, the second paragraph of section 123.114 and sections 123.115 to 123.136, 123.138 and 123.139.

Presumption.	32. Notwithstanding section 472 of the Act respecting financial services cooperatives (2000, chapter 29), the Société is deemed to be a legal person that is not controlled by the Fédération des caisses Desjardins du Québec for the purposes of sections 473 to 486, section 556 and sections 567 and 688 of the said Act.

- Final opinion. “56. Subject to the information that must be transmitted to the user where the complaint is referred to the council of physicians, dentists and pharmacists, the opinion of the review committee is final.
- Annual report. “57. At least once a year and whenever warranted in the opinion of the review committee, the review committee must submit a report to the board of directors, sending a copy to the council of physicians, dentists and pharmacists, in which it describes the reasons for the complaints having given rise to an application for review since the last report, sets out its conclusions and reports on the speed of its review process; the committee may also make recommendations, in particular for the improvement of the quality of medical, dental and pharmaceutical care or services provided in a centre operated by the institution.
- Report to local commissioner. A copy of the report shall also be sent to the local service quality commissioner so that its contents may be incorporated into the report submitted under section 76.10, and to the Health Services Ombudsman.
- Referral for a disciplinary investigation. “58. Subject to the provisions of the second and third paragraphs, where pursuant to subparagraph 2 of the first paragraph of section 46, section 48 or subparagraph 3 of the second paragraph of section 52, a complaint is referred to the council of physicians, dentists and pharmacists for a disciplinary investigation by a committee formed by the council, the procedure determined by a regulation under paragraph 2 of section 506 shall be followed.

1. (1) Section 1 of the Mining Duties Act (R.S.Q., chapter D-15), amended by section 1 of chapter 5 of the statutes of 2000, is again amended

(1) by striking out paragraph 2 of the definition of “mining operation” ;

(2) by replacing paragraph 3 of the definition of “mining operation” by the following :

“(3) carried out after 17 October 1990 in respect of surface mineral substances within the meaning assigned to that expression in section 1 of the Mining Act, or of mineral substances the rights in or over which have been surrendered to the owner of the soil under section 5 of that Act;” ;

(3) by replacing the definition of “mineral substance” by the following :

“mineral substance”.

““mineral substance” means any natural mineral substance, whether solid, gaseous or liquid, except water, and includes a fossilized organic substance or mine tailings, but does not include a mineral substance the well head value of which is subject to the royalty referred to in section 204 of the Mining Act (chapter M-13.1);”.

(2) Subsection 1 applies to fiscal years of an operator that end after 12 May 1994, except in respect of cases pending on 14 March 2000 and notices of objection served on the Minister of Natural Resources on or before that date, in which one of the matters of dispute, expressly raised on or before that date in the motion for appeal or the notice of objection previously served on the Minister of Natural Resources, or in the notice of objection, as the case may be, concerns the method of computing profit or loss for the year and alleges that an expenditure relating to a mineral substance the well head value of which is subject to the royalty referred to in section 204 of the Mining Act (R.S.Q., chapter M-13.1) is deductible in computing profit or loss for a year.

c. D-15, s. 6, replaced.

2. (1) Section 6 of the said Act is replaced by the following :

Gross value of the annual output.

“6. Subject to section 6.1, the gross value of the annual output of an operator for a fiscal year is the value of the mineral substances and, where applicable, of the processing products, derived from the operator’s mining operation, that is established

(1) where the mineral substances and, where applicable, the processing products are used by the operator in the fiscal year, at the market price at the time of their use ; or

(2) where subparagraph 1 does not apply, according to one of the following methods of valuation :

(2) Subsection 1 applies

(1) to fiscal years of an operator that begin after 14 March 2000 ;

(2) to a fiscal year of an operator that includes 14 March 2000 if the operator has so elected by notifying the Minister of Natural Resources in writing not later than six months after the end of the operator’s first fiscal year that ends after 20 December 2001.

c. D-15, s. 6.1, added.

3. (1) The said Act is amended by inserting, after section 6, the following section :

Change in method of valuation.

“6.1. For the purpose of determining the gross value of the annual output of an operator for a fiscal year, the value of the mineral substances and, where applicable, of the processing products, shall be established on the basis of the method of valuation provided for in one of subparagraphs a to c of subparagraph 2 of section 6 that was used by the operator to determine the gross value of annual production for the preceding fiscal year, unless the Minister authorizes the operator to use another of the methods provided for in that subparagraph 2, in which case the operator shall comply with the conditions determined by the Minister.

Change in the method used to prepare the financial statements.

In addition, for the purpose of determining the gross value of annual output for a fiscal year, an operator must also obtain the authorization of the Minister and comply with the conditions determined by the Minister, if the method of valuation used by the operator to determine the value of mineral substances and, where applicable, of the processing products is the method provided for in subparagraph b of subparagraph 2 of section 6, and if the method used by the operator to prepare the financial statements for that fiscal year differs from the method used by the operator to prepare the financial statements for the preceding fiscal year.

Applicability.

This section does not apply for the purpose of determining the gross value of an operator's annual output for the first fiscal year of the operator other than a fiscal year deemed to be the operator's first fiscal year by reason of section 2.1."

(2) Subsection 1 applies to fiscal years of an operator that are after the operator's first fiscal year that begins after 14 March 2000 or to fiscal years of an operator that are after the fiscal year comprising 14 March 2000 if the operator has made the election provided for in paragraph 2 of subsection 2 of section 2.

In case of doubt or where the gross value of an operator's annual output for a fiscal year does not correspond to the market value, the Minister may value the mineral substances and, where applicable, the processing products, derived from the operator's mining operation for the fiscal year, and such valuation shall constitute the gross value of the operator's annual output for the fiscal year for the purposes of this Act."

(2) Subsection 1 applies to fiscal years of an operator that begin after 14 March 2000 or to fiscal years of an operator comprising 14 March 2000 if the operator has made the election provided for in paragraph 2 of subsection 2 of section 2.

(2) by adding, after subparagraph k of paragraph 2, the following subparagraph:

“(l) where, for the purpose of determining the gross value of the operator’s annual output for a fiscal year, the Minister authorizes under section 6.1 the use of a method for the fiscal year that differs from the method used by the operator for the preceding fiscal year, the amount, if any, by which the gross value of annual output for the preceding fiscal year exceeds the value that would be the gross value of annual output for the preceding fiscal year if that value had been established on the basis of the method used by the operator to determine the gross value of annual output for the fiscal year.”

$B \times D$; and

(c) the purchaser is deemed

i. to have an eligible amount for the particular calendar year equal to the aggregate of its eligible amount for the year otherwise determined and the amount that is that proportion of the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the salaries or wages paid by the vendor to an employee in a period within the particular calendar year for which the employee is an eligible employee, or the salaries or wages of an employee who reports for work at an establishment of the vendor situated in Québec, that were paid by the vendor in a period within the particular calendar year for which the employee would be an eligible employee of the vendor if the establishment where the employee so reported for work had been situated in the Québec area, to the extent that the employee may reasonably be considered to have been assigned to the carrying out of the part of the activities that diminished or ceased at the particular time, that the number of days in the particular calendar year preceding the particular time is of the number of days in the particular calendar year during which the vendor carried out those activities, and

ii. to have a base amount in relation to the particular calendar year equal to the aggregate of

(1) the base amount of the purchaser otherwise determined in relation to the particular calendar year,

(2) the amount that is that proportion of the salaries or wages paid by the vendor to an employee in a period within the particular calendar year for which the employee is an eligible employee, or the salaries or wages of an employee who reports for work at an establishment of the vendor situated in Québec, that were paid by the vendor in a period within the particular calendar year for which the employee would be an eligible employee of the vendor if the establishment where the employee so reported for work had been situated in the Québec area, to the extent that the salaries or wages may reasonably be considered to relate to the carrying out by the employee of the part of the activities that diminished or ceased at the particular time, that the number of days in the particular calendar year preceding the particular time is of the number of days in the particular calendar year during which the vendor carried out those activities, and

(3) the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the salaries or wages paid by the purchaser to an employee in a period of the particular calendar year and after the particular time for which the employee is an eligible employee, or the salaries or wages of an employee who reports for work at an establishment of the purchaser situated in Québec, that were paid by the purchaser in a period of the particular calendar year and after the particular time for which the employee would be an eligible employee of the purchaser if the establishment where the employee so reported for work had been situated in the Québec area, to the extent that the salaries or wages may reasonably be considered to relate to the carrying out by the employee of the part of the activities that began or increased at the particular time.

Interpretation.

In the formulas provided for in subparagraphs a and b of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the salaries or wages paid by the vendor to an employee in its base period for the particular calendar year for which the employee is an eligible employee, or the salaries or wages of an employee who reports for work at an establishment of the vendor situated in Québec, that were paid by the vendor in a period within the year for which the employee would be an eligible employee of the vendor if the establishment where the employee so reported for work had been situated in the Québec area;

(b) B is the proportion that the number of the vendor's employees referred to in subparagraph a who are assigned to the part of the activities that diminished or ceased at the particular time is of the number of the vendor's employees assigned to those activities immediately before the particular time;

(c) C, where this section applies for the purpose of determining the amount that a corporation is deemed to have paid to the Minister under this division in respect of the particular calendar year, is the proportion that the number of days in the particular calendar year following the particular time is of 365; and

(d) D is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the salaries or wages paid by the vendor to an employee in a period within the particular calendar year preceding the particular time for which the employee is an eligible employee, or the salaries or wages of an employee who reports for work at an establishment of the vendor situated in Québec, that were paid by the vendor in a period within the particular calendar year preceding the particular time for which the employee would be an eligible employee of the vendor if the establishment where the employee so reported for work had been situated in the Québec area.

Exception.

Where a corporation is, at any time in a calendar year, a purchaser in relation to activities carried out by another corporation and, at a subsequent time in the same calendar year, that corporation is a vendor in relation to all of those activities, this section does not apply to the corporation neither as vendor nor as purchaser in respect of the activities and, for the purpose of determining the amount that the corporation is deemed to have paid to the Minister under this division, the corporation is deemed to have paid, from that time to the subsequent time, no portion of the salaries or wages that may reasonably be considered to relate to the employees of the corporation assigned to the carrying out of the activities that ceased after the subsequent time.

Exception.

For the purposes of this section, where a corporation is, at a particular time in a calendar year, a purchaser in relation to activities carried out by another corporation and, at a subsequent time in the same calendar year, that corporation is a vendor in relation to part of those activities, the following rules apply for the purpose of determining the eligible amount of the corporation for the year and the base amount of the corporation in relation to that year:

(a) the corporation is deemed to have paid to its employees only the portion of the salaries or wages that may reasonably be considered to have been paid to the employees of the corporation assigned to the part of the activities that the corporation continues to carry out after that time; and

(b) the other corporation is deemed to have paid to its employees only the portion of the salaries or wages that may reasonably be considered to have been paid to the employees of the corporation assigned to the part of the activities that the corporation continues to carry out after that time.

Special rule.

Where a particular corporation is, at any time in a calendar year, a purchaser in relation to certain activities carried out by a corporation and that corporation has been, at an earlier time in the calendar year, a purchaser in relation to those activities carried out by another corporation, in applying this section to the particular corporation, subparagraph i of subparagraph c of the first paragraph and subparagraph 2 of subparagraph ii of that subparagraph c shall be read as if the reference therein to “vendor” were a reference to all the corporations that were, in the calendar year and before that time, vendors in respect of the activities.

Assistance, benefit or advantage deemed nil.

Interpretation.

In the formulas provided for in subparagraphs a and b of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the salaries or wages paid by the vendor to an employee in its base period for the particular calendar year for which the employee is an eligible employee, or the salaries or wages of an employee who reports for work at an establishment of the vendor situated in Québec, that were paid by the vendor in a period within the year for which the employee would be an eligible employee of the vendor if the establishment where the employee so reported for work had been situated in the Saguenay–Lac-Saint-Jean area ;

(b) B is the proportion that the number of the vendor's employees referred to in subparagraph a who are assigned to the part of the activities that diminished or ceased at the particular time is of the number of the vendor's employees assigned to those activities immediately before the particular time ;

(c) C, where this section applies for the purpose of determining the amount that a corporation is deemed to have paid to the Minister under this division in respect of the particular calendar year, is the proportion that the number of days in the particular calendar year following the particular time is of 365 ; and

(d) D is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the salaries or wages paid by the vendor to an employee in a period within the particular calendar year preceding the particular time for which the employee is an eligible employee, or the salaries or wages of an employee who reports for work at an establishment of the vendor situated in Québec, that were paid by the vendor in a period within the particular calendar year preceding the particular time for which the employee would be an eligible employee of the vendor if the establishment where the employee so reported for work had been situated in the Saguenay–Lac-Saint-Jean area.

Exception.

Where a corporation is, at any time in a calendar year, a purchaser in relation to activities carried out by another corporation and, at a subsequent time in the same calendar year, that corporation is a vendor in relation to all of those activities, this section does not apply to the corporation neither as vendor nor as purchaser in respect of the activities and, for the purpose of determining the amount that the corporation is deemed to have paid to the Minister under this division, the corporation is deemed to have paid, from that time to the subsequent time, no portion of the salaries or wages that may reasonably be considered to relate to the employees of the corporation assigned to the carrying out of the activities that ceased after the subsequent time.

Exception.

For the purposes of this section, where a corporation is, at a particular time in a calendar year, a purchaser in relation to activities carried out by another corporation and, at a subsequent time in the same calendar year, that corporation is a vendor in relation to part of those activities, the following rules apply for the purpose of determining the eligible amount of the corporation for the year and the base amount of the corporation in relation to that year :

(a) the corporation is deemed to have paid to its employees only the portion of the salaries or wages that may reasonably be considered to have been paid to the employees of the corporation assigned to the part of the activities that the corporation continues to carry out after that time ; and

(b) the other corporation is deemed to have paid to its employees only the portion of the salaries or wages that may reasonably be considered to have been paid to the employees of the corporation assigned to the part of the activities that the corporation continues to carry out after that time.

Special rule.

Where a particular corporation is, at any time in a calendar year, a purchaser in relation to certain activities carried out by a corporation and that corporation has been, at an earlier time in the calendar year, a purchaser in relation to those activities carried out by another corporation, in applying this section to the particular corporation, subparagraph i of subparagraph c of the first paragraph and subparagraph 2 of subparagraph ii of that subparagraph c shall be read as if the reference therein to “vendor” were a reference to all the corporations that were, in the calendar year and before that time, vendors in respect of the activities.

Assistance, benefit or advantage deemed nil.

“1029.8.36.72.26. For the purposes of this division, where a corporation has received, is entitled to receive or may reasonably expect to receive non-government assistance, or where a person or a partnership has obtained, is entitled to obtain or may reasonably expect to obtain a benefit or advantage, whether in the form of a reimbursement, compensation or guarantee, in the form of proceeds of disposition of property which exceed the fair market value of the property, or in any other form or manner, in respect of a taxation year or a fiscal period in which the base period of the corporation ends in relation to a calendar year, in respect of a recognized business, or a business that would have been a recognized business if a qualification certificate had been issued in its respect, and where it may reasonably be considered that the main reason for the assistance or the benefit or advantage is to reduce, in accordance with subparagraph i or iii of paragraph a or b of section 1029.8.36.72.21, as the case may be, the amount of the salaries or wages paid by the corporation in its base period, in relation to the business, so as to cause the corporation to be deemed to have paid an amount to the Minister under this division for a taxation year or to increase an amount that the corporation is deemed to have paid to the Minister under this division for a taxation year, the amount of the assistance or of the benefit or advantage is deemed to be zero.

Corporations deemed to be associated.

“1029.8.36.72.27. Where it may reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons for the separate existence of two or more corporations in a calendar year is to cause a qualified corporation to be deemed to have paid an amount to the Minister under this division in respect of that year or to increase an amount that a qualified corporation is deemed to have paid to the Minister under this division in respect of that year, those corporations are deemed, for the purposes of this division, to be associated with each other at the end of the year.

Advice.

“1029.8.36.72.28. The Minister may obtain the advice of Investissement-Québec to determine, for the purposes of this division, whether an activity is directly related to the manufacturing or, as the case may be, the commercialization of finished or semi-finished products made from aluminum which has already undergone primary processing or specialized equipment for businesses producing or processing aluminum.

Interpretation.

In the formulas provided for in subparagraphs a and b of the first paragraph,

(a) A is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the salaries or wages paid by the vendor to an employee in its base period for the particular calendar year for which the employee is an eligible employee, or the salaries or wages of an employee who reports for work at an establishment of the vendor situated in Québec, that were paid by the vendor in a period within the year for which the employee would be an eligible employee of the vendor if the establishment where the employee so reported for work had been situated in the Angus Technopole ;

(b) B is the proportion that the number of the vendor's employees referred to in subparagraph a who are assigned to the part of the activities that diminished or ceased at the particular time is of the number of the vendor's employees assigned to those activities immediately before the particular time;

(c) C, where this section applies for the purpose of determining the amount that a corporation is deemed to have paid to the Minister under this division in respect of the particular calendar year, is the proportion that the number of days in the particular calendar year following the particular time is of 365; and

(d) D is the aggregate of all amounts each of which is the salaries or wages paid by the vendor to an employee in a period within the particular calendar year preceding the particular time for which the employee is an eligible employee, or the salaries or wages of an employee who reports for work at an establishment of the vendor situated in Québec, that were paid by the vendor in a period within the particular calendar year preceding the particular time for which the employee would be an eligible employee of the vendor if the establishment where the employee so reported for work had been situated in the Angus Technopole.

Exception.

Where a corporation is, at any time in a calendar year, a purchaser in relation to activities carried out by another corporation and, at a subsequent time in the same calendar year, that corporation is a vendor in relation to all of those activities, this section does not apply to the corporation neither as vendor nor as purchaser in respect of the activities and, for the purpose of determining the amount that the corporation is deemed to have paid to the Minister under this division, the corporation is deemed to have paid, from that time to the subsequent time, no portion of the salaries or wages that may reasonably be considered to relate to the employees of the corporation assigned to the carrying out of the activities that ceased after the subsequent time.

Exception.

For the purposes of this section, where a corporation is, at a particular time in a calendar year, a purchaser in relation to activities carried out by another corporation and, at a subsequent time in the same calendar year, that corporation is a vendor in relation to part of those activities, the following rules apply for the purpose of determining the eligible amount of the corporation for the year and the base amount of the corporation in relation to that year :

(a) the corporation is deemed to have paid to its employees only the portion of the salaries or wages that may reasonably be considered to have been paid to the employees of the corporation assigned to the part of the activities that the corporation continues to carry out after that time; and

(b) the other corporation is deemed to have paid to its employees only the portion of the salaries or wages that may reasonably be considered to have been paid to the employees of the corporation assigned to the part of the activities that the corporation continues to carry out after that time.

Special rule.

Where a particular corporation is, at any time in a calendar year, a purchaser in relation to certain activities carried out by a corporation and that corporation has been, at an earlier time in the calendar year, a purchaser in relation to those activities carried out by another corporation, in applying this section to the particular corporation, subparagraph i of subparagraph c of the first paragraph and subparagraph 2 of subparagraph ii of that subparagraph c shall be read as if the reference therein to “vendor” were a reference to all the corporations that were, in the calendar year and before that time, vendors in respect of the activities.

Assistance, benefit or advantage deemed nil.

“1029.8.36.72.40. For the purposes of this division, where a corporation has received, is entitled to receive or may reasonably expect to receive non-government assistance, or where a person or a partnership has obtained, is entitled to obtain or may reasonably expect to obtain a benefit or advantage, whether in the form of a reimbursement, compensation or guarantee, in the form of proceeds of disposition of property which exceed the fair market value of the property, or in any other form or manner, in respect of a taxation year or a fiscal period in which the base period of the corporation ends in relation to a calendar year, in respect of a recognized business, or a business that would have been a recognized business if a qualification certificate had been issued in its respect, and where it may reasonably be considered that the main reason for the assistance or the benefit or advantage is to reduce, in accordance with subparagraph i or iii of paragraph a or b of section 1029.8.36.72.35, as the case may be, the amount of the salaries or wages paid by the corporation in its base period, in relation to the business, so as to cause the corporation to be deemed to have paid an amount to the Minister under this division for a taxation year or to increase an amount that the corporation is deemed to have paid to the Minister under this division for a taxation year, the amount of the assistance or of the benefit or advantage is deemed to be zero.

Corporations deemed to be associated.

“1029.8.36.72.41. Where it may reasonably be considered that one of the main reasons for the separate existence of two or more corporations in a calendar year is to cause a qualified corporation to be deemed to have paid an amount to the Minister under this division in respect of that year or to increase an amount that a qualified corporation is deemed to have paid to the Minister under this division in respect of that year, those corporations are deemed, for the purposes of this division, to be associated with each other at the end of the year.

Advice.

“1029.8.36.72.42. The Minister may obtain the advice of Investissement-Québec to determine, for the purposes of this division, whether an activity is directly related to manufacturing, recycling or site purification and decontamination activities, or to the commercialization of goods or services resulting from such activities.”

Amount owed by person not resident in Canada.

“127.6. Where, at any time in a taxation year of a corporation resident in Canada, a person not resident in Canada owes an amount to the corporation, that amount has been or remains outstanding for more than a year and the amount determined under the second paragraph for the year is less than the amount of interest that would be included in computing the corporation’s income for the year in respect of the amount owing if that interest were computed at a reasonable rate for the period in the year during which the amount was owing, the corporation shall include an amount in computing its income for the year equal to the amount by which the amount of interest that would be included in computing the corporation’s income for the year in respect of the amount owing if that interest were computed at the prescribed rate for the period in the year during which the amount was owing exceeds the amount determined under the second paragraph.

Loan through partnership.

“127.9. For the purposes of this division, where a person not resident in Canada owes a particular amount at any time to a partnership and section 127.7 does not deem the person not resident in Canada to owe an amount equal to that particular amount to a corporation resident in Canada, the person not resident in Canada is deemed to owe at that time to each member of the partnership, on the same terms and conditions as those that apply in respect of the amount owing to the partnership, that proportion of the amount owing to the partnership at that time that the fair market value at that time of the member’s interest in the partnership is of the fair market value at that time of the interests of all members in the partnership.

Loan through trust.

(a) where the trust is a non-discretionary trust at that time, the person not resident in Canada is deemed to owe at that time to each beneficiary of the trust, on the same terms and conditions as those that apply in respect of the amount owing to the trust, an amount equal to that proportion of the amount owing to the trust at that time that the fair market value at that time of the beneficiary’s beneficial interest in the trust is of the fair market value at that time of all the beneficial interests in the trust; and

Exception. “127.12. Section 127.6 does not apply to an amount owing to a corporation resident in Canada by a person not resident in Canada if a prescribed tax has been paid on the amount owing.

Application. For the purposes of this section, a prescribed tax is deemed not to have been paid on that portion of the amount owing in respect of which an amount was repaid or applied in accordance with subsection 6.1 of section 227 of the Income Tax Act (Revised Statutes of Canada, 1985, chapter 1, 5th Supplement).

Exception. “127.13. Section 127.6 does not apply to a corporation resident in Canada for a taxation year of the corporation in respect of an amount owing to the corporation by a person not resident in Canada if that person is a controlled foreign affiliate of the corporation throughout the period in the year during which the amount is owing and it is established that the amount owing

(b) arose in the course of an active business carried on by the affiliate throughout the period that began when the amount owing arose and that ended at the earlier of the end of the year and the time at which the amount was repaid.

Exception. “127.14. Section 127.6 does not apply to a corporation resident in Canada for a taxation year of the corporation in respect of an amount owing to the corporation by a person not resident in Canada if

(a) the corporation is not related to the person not resident in Canada throughout the period in the year during which the amount owing remains outstanding;

(b) the amount owing arose in respect of goods sold or services provided to the person not resident in Canada by the corporation in the ordinary course of the business carried on by the corporation; and

(c) the terms and conditions in respect of the amount owing are such that persons dealing at arm's length would have been willing to enter into them at the time that they were entered into.

Anti-avoidance rules. "127.15. For the purposes of this division,

(a) where any person or partnership has a right under a contract or otherwise, either immediately or in the future and either absolutely or contingently, to, or to acquire, shares of the capital stock of a corporation, that person or partnership is deemed to own those shares if it can reasonably be considered that the principal purpose for the existence of the right is to avoid or reduce the amount of income that a corporation would otherwise be required to include in computing its income for a taxation year under section 127.6; and

(b) where any person or partnership acquires or disposes of shares of the capital stock of a corporation, either directly or indirectly, and it can reasonably be considered that the principal purpose for the acquisition or disposition of the shares is to avoid or reduce the amount of income that a corporation would otherwise be required to include in computing its income for a taxation year under section 127.6, those shares are deemed not to have been acquired or disposed of, as the case may be, and where the shares were unissued by the corporation immediately before the acquisition, those shares are deemed not to have been issued."

Presumptions
respecting a farm-out

“39.4. If, under an agreement in writing between a person (in this section referred to as the “farmor”) and another person (in this section referred to as the “farmee”), the farmor transfers to the farmee particular natural resource rights, or portions of them, relating to unproven property in consideration or part consideration for the farmee undertaking the exploration of the property for mineral deposits, providing information, or the right to it, gathered from the exploration and, subject to any conditions that may be provided in the agreement, developing the property for the production of minerals, the following rules apply:

(1) the value, as consideration, of any property or service given by the farmor to the farmee under the agreement is deemed to be nil to the extent that the property or service is given as consideration for any of the following (each of which is referred to in this section as the “farmee’s contribution”):

(a) the undertaking of that exploration or development,

(b) the provision of that information, or the right to it, and

(c) any transfer under the agreement by the farmee to the farmor of any interest in specified mining or well-site equipment that is used by the farmee exclusively in that exploration or development;

(2) the value of the farmee’s contribution as consideration for any property or service given by the farmor to the farmee under the agreement is deemed to be nil; and

(3) if part of the consideration given by the farmor for the farmee’s contribution is property or a service (each of which is referred to in this paragraph as the “farmor’s additional contribution”) that is not a natural resource right relating to unproven property,

(a) the farmee is deemed to have made, at the place at which the unproven property is situated, a taxable supply of a service to the farmor separate from any supply by the farmee under the agreement and that service is deemed to be consideration for the farmor's additional contribution,

(b) the value of that service and the value of the farmor's additional contribution as consideration for the supply of that service are each deemed to be equal to the fair market value of the farmor's additional contribution determined at the time (in this paragraph referred to as the "time of transfer") that

i. if the farmor's additional contribution is a service, performance of the service commences, and

ii. in any other case, ownership of the farmor's additional contribution is transferred to the farmee,

(c) all of the consideration for the farmor's additional contribution and the consideration for the service deemed to have been supplied by the farmee are deemed to become due at the time of transfer, and

(d) if, in addition to the farmee's contribution, the farmee supplies to the farmor other property or services, other than the service deemed under subparagraph a to have been supplied, for which part of the consideration is the farmor's additional contribution, the value of the consideration for the supply of the other property or services is deemed to be equal to the amount by which the value of that consideration, determined without reference to this subparagraph, exceeds the fair market value of the farmor's additional contribution."

(2) Subsection 1 has effect from 1 July 1992. However, in respect of agreements entered into before 8 August 1998, section 39.4 of the said Act, enacted by subsection 1, shall be read without reference to paragraph 3.

c. T-0.1, s. 52,

283. (1) Section 52 of the said Act is replaced by the following :

"52. For the purposes of this section, "provincial levy" means a duty, fee or tax imposed under an Act of the legislature of Québec, another province, the Northwest Territories or the Yukon Territory in respect of the supply, consumption or use of property or a service.

The consideration for a supply of property or a service includes

(1) any duty, fee or tax imposed under an Act of Canada that is payable by the recipient, or payable or collectible by the supplier, in respect of that supply or in respect of the production, importation into Canada, consumption or use of the property or service ;

(2) any provincial levy that is payable by the recipient, or payable or collectible by the supplier, in respect of that supply or in respect of the consumption or use of the property or service, other than tax payable under this Title and the prescribed duties, fees or taxes payable by the recipient ;

(3) any other amount that is collectible by the supplier under an Act of the legislature of Québec, another province, the Northwest Territories or the Yukon Territory that is equal to, or is collectible on account of or in lieu of, a provincial levy, except where the amount is payable by the recipient and the provincial levy is a prescribed duty, fee or tax.

Presumption.

If, under Title I, a person is deemed to be the recipient of a supply in respect of which another person would, but for that deeming, be the recipient, a reference in this section to the recipient of the supply shall be read as a reference to that other person.”

(2) Subsection 1, except where it enacts the third paragraph of section 52 of the said Act, has effect from 1 July 1992.

(3) Subsection 1, where it enacts the third paragraph of section 52 of the said Act, has effect from 4 June 1999.

c. T-0.1, ss. 54.1.1 – 54.1.6, added.

284. (1) The said Act is amended by inserting, after section 54.1, the following sections :

Leaseback agreement.

“54.1.1. If a person (in this section and sections 54.1.2 to 54.1.5 referred to as the “lessee”) makes a supply by way of sale of corporeal movable property to another person (in this section referred to as the “lessor”), the lessee is not required to collect tax in respect of that supply and the lessor immediately makes a taxable supply of the property by way of lease to the lessee under an agreement (in this section and sections 54.1.2 to 54.1.5 referred to as the “original leaseback agreement”), the value of the consideration for a supply of the property by way of lease that, at a particular time, becomes due or is paid without having become due under a particular agreement that is the original leaseback agreement or a subsequent lease in respect of that agreement, is deemed to be equal to the amount determined by the formula

$A - B$.

Interpretation.

For the purposes of this formula,

(1) A is the value of the consideration as otherwise determined ; and

(2) B is the amount (in this section referred to as the “purchase credit”) that is equal to the lesser of

(a) the value of A, and

(b) the amount determined by the formula

C / D, or

(c) if there is no unused total purchase credit within the meaning of subparagraph 1 of the third paragraph, zero.

Interpretation.

For the purposes of the formula in subparagraph b of subparagraph 2 of the second paragraph,

(1) C is the amount (in this section and section 54.1.5 referred to as the “unused total purchase credit”) by which the consideration for the supply by way of sale exceeds the total of all amounts each of which is the purchase credit that was determined in calculating the amount deemed under this section to be the value of any consideration that, before the particular time, became due or was paid without having become due under the original leaseback agreement or a subsequent lease in respect of that agreement; and

(2) D is the specified number of remaining lease payments under the particular agreement at the particular time.

Specified number of remaining lease payments.

“54.1.2. For the purposes of section 54.1.1, “specified number of remaining lease payments”, at a particular time, in respect of a particular agreement for the supply of property by way of lease that is an original leaseback agreement or a subsequent lease in respect of that agreement, is the amount determined by the formula

A – B.

Interpretation.

For the purposes of this formula,

(1) A is the total number of payments that the lessee was obligated to make as consideration for the supplies of the property by way of lease under the particular agreement based on the terms of that agreement at the time it was entered into; and

(2) B is the total number of payments referred to in subparagraph 1 that, before the particular time, became due or were paid by the lessee.

Subsequent lease.

“54.1.3. For the purposes of sections 54.1.1 to 54.1.5, “subsequent lease”, in respect of an original leaseback agreement for the supply of property by way of lease to a lessee, means

(1) an agreement for the supply of the property by way of lease that constitutes a new agreement between the lessee and an assignee of the rights and obligations of the person who is the supplier under the original leaseback agreement or under an agreement referred to in this paragraph or paragraph 2; or

(2) an agreement for the supply of the property by way of lease to the lessee that succeeds, as a new agreement, either the original leaseback agreement or a particular agreement referred to in paragraph 1 or in this paragraph upon a renewal or variation of that original leaseback agreement or particular agreement.

Subsequent lease –
presumption.

“54.1.4. For the purposes of sections 54.1.1, 54.1.2 and 54.1.5, where a supplier agrees, at any time, to renew, vary, terminate, otherwise than upon the exercise of an option to purchase, or assign a particular agreement for the supply of property by way of lease that is an original leaseback agreement or a subsequent lease in respect of that agreement and the renewal, variation, termination or assignment does not constitute a novation of the particular agreement but has the effect of changing the number of payments that the lessee is obligated to make for supplies by way of lease of the property under the particular agreement, the following rules apply:

(1) the supplier and lessee are deemed to have, at that time, entered into a subsequent lease in respect of the original leaseback agreement; and

(2) all supplies by way of lease for which consideration becomes due, or is paid without having become due, at or after the time the renewal, variation, termination or assignment takes effect that would, but for this section, be made under the particular agreement are deemed to be made under that subsequent lease and not under the particular agreement.

Purchase option.

“54.1.5. Except for a purpose contemplated in paragraph 1 of section 54.2, if a supply of property by way of sale is made to a lessee on the exercise by the lessee of an option to purchase the property provided for in an original leaseback agreement entered into by the lessee in respect of the property, or in a subsequent lease in respect of that agreement, to which section 54.1.1 applied, and immediately before the earliest time at which the consideration for the supply becomes due or is paid without having become due, there is an unused total purchase credit in respect of the property, the following rules apply:

(1) the value of the consideration for the supply is deemed to be equal to the amount determined by the formula

$A - B$; and

(2) section 54.1.1 does not apply to any consideration that, after that earliest time, becomes due or is paid without having become due for any supply of the property by way of lease that was made under the original leaseback agreement or under a subsequent lease in respect of that agreement.

Interpretation.

For the purposes of this formula,

(1) A is the value of the consideration for the supply as otherwise determined; and

(2) B is that unused total purchase credit.

Presumption.

“54.1.6. For the purposes of sections 54.1.1 to 54.1.5, if a person makes a supply of property by way of sale to a recipient with whom the person is not dealing at arm’s length and the consideration for the supply exceeds the fair market value of the property at the time ownership of the property is transferred to the recipient, the consideration for the supply is deemed to be equal to that fair market value.”

(2) Subject to subsection 3, subsection 1 applies to

(1) any supply of property by way of lease made by a person to a recipient under an original leaseback agreement, within the meaning of section 54.1.1 of the said Act, entered into at any time after 31 December 1998 and the supply of the property by way of sale by the recipient to the person immediately before that time;

(2) any supply of the property by way of lease to the recipient made under a subsequent lease in respect of the original leaseback agreement, within the meaning of sections 54.1.3 and 54.1.4 of the said Act; and

(3) any supply of the property by way of sale on the exercise of an option to purchase the property provided for in the original leaseback agreement or in a subsequent lease, within the meaning of sections 54.1.3 and 54.1.4 of the said Act, in respect of that agreement.

(3) Where the original leaseback agreement is varied or renewed with the effect of increasing the number of payments that the recipient is obligated to make for supplies by way of lease of the property under that agreement and the variation or renewal takes effect before 1 July 1999, section 54.1.4 of the said Act does not apply to that variation or renewal.

c. T-0.1, s. 54.3,
added.

285. (1) The said Act is amended by inserting, after section 54.2, the following section:

Exchange of natural gas liquids for
make-up gas.

“54.3. If natural gas is transported by pipeline to a straddle plant at which natural gas liquids or ethane (each of which is referred to in this section as “natural gas liquids”) is recovered from the natural gas, the residue gas is returned to the pipeline after the recovery along with other natural gas (in this section referred to as “make-up gas”) that is supplied solely to make up for the loss of energy content due to the recovery, and the consideration or a part of the consideration for any supply of the natural gas liquids, or the right to recover the liquids, or any supply of make-up gas is, in the case of a supply of natural gas liquids or the right to recover the liquids, the make-up gas, and, in the case of a supply of make-up gas, the natural gas liquids or the right to recover the liquids, the value of that consideration or part, as the case may be, is deemed to be nil.”

(2) Subsection 1 applies to any exchange of natural gas liquids, ethane or the right to recover natural gas liquids or ethane for make-up gas, if, after 7 August 1998 and under the agreement for that exchange, any make-up gas is given as consideration for the natural gas liquids, ethane or right to recover natural gas liquids or ethane, or any natural gas liquids, ethane or right to recover natural gas liquids or ethane is given as consideration for the make-up gas.

(2) Subsection 1 applies in respect of property brought into Québec after 10 December 1998.

c. T-0.1, ss. 382.1 – 382.7, added.

360. (1) The said Act is amended by inserting, after section 382, the following :

“§4.1. — Qualifying motor vehicles

Qualifying motor vehicle.

“382.1. For the purposes of this subdivision, “qualifying motor vehicle” means a motor vehicle

(a) that is equipped with a device designed exclusively to assist in placing a wheelchair in the vehicle without having to collapse the wheelchair or with an auxiliary driving control to facilitate the operation of the vehicle by an individual with a disability; and

(b) that, for as long as it has been so equipped, has never been used as capital property or been held otherwise than for supply in the ordinary course of business.

Qualifying motor vehicle purchased in Québec.

“382.2. The recipient is entitled to a rebate of that portion of the total tax payable in respect of the supply of a qualifying motor vehicle that is equal to tax calculated on the portion (in this section referred to as the “certified amount of the purchase price”) of the consideration for the supply that can reasonably be attributed to special features that have been incorporated into, or adaptations that have been made to, the vehicle for the purpose of its use by or in transporting an individual using a wheelchair or to equip the vehicle with an auxiliary driving control that facilitates the operation of the vehicle by an individual with a disability if

- (1) a registrant makes a taxable supply by way of sale of the vehicle;
- (2) the recipient has paid all tax payable in respect of the supply;
- (3) the supplier identifies in writing to the recipient the certified amount of the purchase price of the vehicle; and
- (4) the recipient files with the Minister an application for a rebate within four years after the first day on which any tax in respect of the supply becomes payable.

Application submitted to the supplier.

“382.3. A registrant who has made a taxable supply by way of sale of a qualifying motor vehicle may pay to or credit in favour of the recipient the amount of the rebate under section 382.2 if

- (1) tax under section 16 has been paid or becomes payable in respect of the supply; and
- (2) the recipient submits to the registrant, within four years after the first day on which any tax in respect of the supply becomes payable, an application for the rebate to which the recipient would be entitled under section 382.2 in respect of the vehicle if the recipient had paid all tax payable in respect of the supply and applied for the rebate in accordance with that section.

Exception.

However, if the supply is a supply by way of retail sale of a motor vehicle other than a supply made following the exercise by the recipient of a right to acquire the vehicle, conferred on the recipient under an agreement in writing for the lease of the vehicle entered into with the registrant, the registrant may deduct the amount applied for by the recipient as a rebate for the amount of the tax payable which the recipient must indicate for the purposes of section 425.1.

Transmission of application by supplier.

“382.4. If an application of a recipient for a rebate under section 382.2 is submitted to a registrant in the circumstances described in section 382.3, the following rules apply :

(1) the registrant shall transmit the application to the Minister with the registrant’s return filed under Chapter VIII for the reporting period in which an amount on account of the rebate is paid or credited by the registrant to or in favour of the recipient or, in the case referred to in the second paragraph of section 382.3, for the reporting period that includes the delivery of the motor vehicle to the recipient ; and Solidary liability.

“382.5. If, under section 382.3, a registrant pays to or credits in favour of a recipient an amount on account of a rebate and the registrant knows or ought to know that the recipient is not entitled to the rebate or that the amount paid or credited exceeds the rebate to which the recipient is entitled, the registrant and the recipient are solidarily liable to pay to the Minister the amount that was paid or credited on account of the rebate or the excess amount, as the case may be.

Qualifying motor vehicle purchased outside Québec.

“382.6. The recipient is entitled to a rebate of that portion of the total tax payable under section 17 in respect of a qualifying motor vehicle that is equal to tax calculated on the portion (in this section referred to as the “certified amount of the purchase price”) of the value of the vehicle, within the meaning of section 17, that can reasonably be attributed to special features that have been incorporated into, or adaptations that have been made to, the vehicle for the purpose of its use by or in transporting an individual using a wheelchair or to equip the vehicle with an auxiliary driving control that facilitates the operation of the vehicle by an individual with a disability if

(1) there shall not be included, in determining the tax payable in respect of any supply to that recipient by way of lease of the vehicle made under the particular agreement or under any agreement for the variation or renewal of that lease, the portion of the consideration for that supply that is identified in writing to the recipient by the supplier and can reasonably be attributed to special features that have been incorporated into, or adaptations that have been made to, the vehicle for the purpose of its use by or in transporting an individual using a wheelchair or to equip the vehicle with an auxiliary driving control that facilitates the operation of the vehicle by an individual with a disability; and

(2) if, at a later time, the recipient exercises an option under the particular agreement, or under an agreement for the variation or renewal of that agreement, to purchase the vehicle, the vehicle is deemed, for the purposes of sections 382.2 and 382.6, to be a qualifying motor vehicle at that later time.”

- Administrative support. It shall also, within the scope of its resources, pay for the administrative support needed by the ethics committee to carry out its work.
- Information. 32. The ethics committee shall provide the Minister with any information required by the Minister concerning its activities, within the time and in the form indicated by the Minister.

CHAPTER IV

ONGOING SURVEILLANCE

DIVISION I

GENERAL PROVISIONS

- Ongoing surveillance. 33. Ongoing surveillance of the health status of the population and of health determinants shall be carried out so as to

- (1) obtain an overall picture of the health status of the population ;
- (2) monitor trends and temporal and spatial variations ;
- (3) detect emerging problems ;
- (4) identify major problems ;
- (5) develop prospective scenarios of the health status of the population ;

(6) monitor the development within the population of certain specific health problems and of their determinants.

Exclusive function. 34. Ongoing surveillance of the health status of the population is a function conferred exclusively on the Minister and the public health directors.

Delegation. However, the Minister may confer on the Institut national de santé publique du Québec the mandate to exercise all or part of the Minister's surveillance function or certain surveillance activities, on the conditions and to the extent the Minister considers appropriate. The Minister may also confer such a mandate on a third person, but in such a case, the mandate must first be submitted to the Commission d'accès à l'information for an opinion.

Plans, purposes, data and analysis. 35. The Minister and the public health directors, each for their own purpose, shall develop plans for the surveillance of the health status of the population which specify the purpose and objects of the surveillance, the personal or non-personal information it will be necessary to collect, the proposed sources of information, and the analytic study necessary to be able to exercise their surveillance function. Where the Minister confers certain surveillance activities or part of the Minister's surveillance function on a third person, the surveillance plan must so provide.

Ethics committee. 36. The proposed surveillance plans must be submitted to the ethics committee for an opinion.

Personal information. Where a surveillance plan provides for the communication of personal information which is within the purview of the Commission d'accès à l'information under the Act respecting Access to documents held by public bodies and the Protection of personal information (R.S.Q., chapter A-2.1) or where the Commission must examine a mandate conferred by the Minister under section 34 of this Act, a copy of the opinion of the ethics committee must be forwarded to the Commission.

Periodic evaluations. 37. The Minister and each public health director must periodically re-evaluate the necessity of maintaining each of their surveillance plans or of making changes to them.

Information. 38. The Minister and the public health directors may require physicians, public or private medical laboratories, health and social services institutions, any government department or any body to provide them with the information necessary for a surveillance plan, in a form that does not allow the persons to whom the information relates to be identified but that enables such information to be obtained for each area served by a health and social services institution operating a local community service centre, each municipality, each borough or each ward.

DIVISION II

SURVEYS ON HEALTH AND SOCIAL ISSUES

- Periodic surveys. 39. Periodic surveys on health and social issues shall be conducted to gather the recurrent information necessary for ongoing surveillance of the health status of the population.
- Periodic surveys. 40. The Minister may personally conduct such surveys or ensure that the information collected in the course of surveys conducted by other resources is transmitted to the Minister or made available to the public health directors.
- Survey's objectives. 41. Where the Minister chooses to conduct a national survey for the purposes of ongoing surveillance of the health status of the population, the Minister shall determine the survey's objectives after consulting the public health directors.
- Institut de la statistique. 42. The carrying out of national surveys shall be entrusted to the Institut de la statistique du Québec created under the Act respecting the Institut de la statistique du Québec (R.S.Q., chapter I-13.011), which shall comply with the objectives determined by the Minister.
- Regional surveys. Public health directors may conduct regional surveys on health and social issues.
- Ethics committee. 43. Surveys on health and social issues conducted for the purposes of surveillance of the health status of the population must first be submitted to the ethics committee for an opinion.
- Exception. However, the Minister may exempt a proposed national survey from that requirement if the ethical review of that survey is conducted by the ethics committee of the Institut de la statistique du Québec.

CHAPTER V

COLLECTION OF INFORMATION AND REGISTRIES

- Collection system. 44. The Minister shall establish and maintain, in particular for the purposes of ongoing surveillance of the health status of the population, a system for the collection of sociological and health-related personal or non-personal information on births, stillbirths and deaths; the mechanics of the system shall be fixed by regulation.

- Birth certificate. 45. The physician or midwife or, if there is no physician or midwife, any person assisting a woman during childbirth must complete a certificate of birth for the purposes of this Act.
- Death certificate. 46. An institution that maintains a facility in which a death occurs must cause a certificate of death to be drawn up by a physician, for the purposes of this Act.
- Outside health institutions. Where a death occurs elsewhere than in a facility maintained by an institution, the last physician who treated the person shall fill out the certificate of death. If the physician is not accessible, the certificate of death may be drawn up by another physician, a nurse or a coroner. If no person acting in any of such capacities is available within a radius of 16 kilometres, the certificate of death may be drawn up by two persons of full age.
- Coroner. Where a death is the subject of an investigation and, where applicable, of an inquest under the Act respecting the determination of the causes and circumstances of death (R.S.Q., chapter R-0.2), the certificate of death shall be drawn up by the coroner.
- Funeral director. Where the remains of a person who died outside Québec are transported into Québec, the certificate of death shall be drawn up by the funeral director transporting the remains, unless the case falls within the competence of the coroner.
- Collection systems. 47. The Minister may also establish and maintain, in particular for the purposes of ongoing surveillance of the health status of the population, systems for the collection of data and personal and non-personal information on the prevalence, incidence and distribution of health problems and in particular on problems having significant impacts on premature mortality and on morbidity and disability; the particulars of the system shall be fixed by regulation.
- Transmission. 48. The certificates, data or information referred to in sections 45, 46 and 47 shall be transmitted to the Minister in accordance with the regulations of the Minister.
- Regulations and registries. 49. The Minister may, for the purposes of clinical preventive care or the protection of the health of the population, make regulations establishing registries in which personal information on certain health services or health care received by the population is recorded.
- Entries and access. The regulations shall specify the services or care that must be recorded in the registries, the personal information that must be furnished, in what circumstances and by what health professionals, and who will have access to such personal information and for what purposes.
- Consent. The regulations shall provide that the consent of the person receiving the services or care is required both for the recording of the information in the registry and for allowing third persons to have access to the information, and the regulations must enable a person to remove all or part of the information that relates to him or her from a registry.

Exception.

The regulations may, however, provide for the recording of certain information in a registry or allow access to certain information without the consent of the person to whom the information relates, where the refusal of that person could endanger the health of other persons. In such a case, the person concerned may not require the removal of the information that relates to him or her from the registry.

Opinion of the Commission d'accès.

50. Draft regulations establishing the registries provided for in section 49 must be submitted to the Commission d'accès à l'information for an opinion. Should the Commission give an unfavourable opinion, the draft regulations may not be adopted by the Minister except with the approval of the Government.

Tabling.

The opinion of the Commission and the approval of the Government must be tabled in the National Assembly within thirty days of the approval if the Assembly is sitting or, if it is not sitting, within thirty days of the opening of the next session, or of resumption.

Mandatory recording.

51. From the time a regulation of the Minister made under section 49 becomes effective, the health professionals to whom the regulation applies are required to record the information specified in the regulation in the registry so established, in the manner and within the time limits prescribed in the regulation.

Management.

52. The Minister may personally assume the management of the data collection systems or the registries established under this chapter or entrust the management of the systems and registries to another public body pursuant to an agreement.

CHAPTER VI

HEALTH PROMOTION AND PREVENTION

DIVISION I

GENERAL PROVISIONS

Health promotion.

53. The Minister, public health directors and institutions operating a local community service centre may, each at the appropriate level of intervention, for the purpose of preventing disease, trauma and social problems that have an impact on the health of the population and influencing population health determinants positively,

(1) organize public information and awareness campaigns ;

(2) promote and support preventive health care practice among health care professionals ;

(3) identify and assess situations involving health risks within the population ;

(4) establish mechanisms providing for concerted action between various resources able to act on situations that may cause problems of avoidable morbidity, disability and mortality ;

(5) promote health and the adoption of public social policies capable of fostering the enhancement of the health and welfare of the population among the various resources whose decisions or actions may have an impact on the health of the general population or of certain groups ;

(6) support actions which, within a community, foster the creation of a living environment conducive to health and well-being.

Advisor functions.

54. The Minister is by virtue of his or her office the advisor of the Government on any public health issue. The Minister shall give the other ministers any advice he or she considers advisable for health promotion and the adoption of policies capable of fostering the enhancement of the health and welfare of the population.

Consultation.

In the Minister's capacity as government advisor, the Minister shall be consulted in relation to the development of the measures provided for in an Act or regulation that could have significant impact on the health of the population.

Risk of avoidable mortality.

55. Where a public health director becomes aware of the existence or fears the occurrence in the region of a situation putting the population or a group of individuals at high risk of avoidable mortality, disability or morbidity and, in the director's opinion, effective solutions exist for the reduction or elimination of those risks, the director may formally request the authorities whose intervention appears useful to participate in the search for a solution adapted to the circumstances.

Required participation.

Authorities who receive such an invitation are required to participate in the search for a solution.

Notification.

Where one of the authorities is a department or body of the Government, the public health director may not formally request their participation without first notifying the national public health director.

Minister's prerogative.

56. The Minister may at all times choose to personally exercise the power provided for in section 55, in collaboration with the public health director or directors concerned.

DIVISION IIFLUORIDATION OF DRINKING WATER

- Fluoridation monitoring. 57. Every owner of a water treatment plant that fluoridates the water it supplies must monitor the quality of the fluoridation to ensure it meets the optimum fluoride concentration prescribed by regulation of the Minister to prevent tooth decay.
- Standards. 58. The Minister may, by regulation, set standards as regards the procedure for monitoring the quality of drinking water fluoridation.
- Fluoridation. 59. The national public health program must include actions designed to encourage the fluoridation of water.
- Subsidies. 60. The Minister may, to the extent the Minister considers appropriate, grant a subsidy to every owner of a water treatment plant who applies therefor, to cover the costs of purchasing, housing, installing or repairing a fluoridation system and the cost of the fluoride used.
- Conditions. The Minister may subject the granting of the subsidy to the conditions considered appropriate.

CHAPTER VIIVACCINATION*DIVISION I*VACCINATION REGISTRY

- Registry. 61. The Minister shall cause a registry to be kept to record the vaccinations carried out in Québec. The Minister may personally assume the management of the registry or entrust the management to another public body pursuant to an agreement.
- Recording. 62. All vaccinations received by a person shall be recorded in the registry, provided the person consents thereto in the manner set out in sections 63 to 65.
- Consent. 63. A person's consent to the recording in the registry of the vaccinations received must be given in writing. Such consent shall remain valid for all subsequent vaccinations the person may receive, whatever the type of vaccine.
- Withdrawal. However, a person may, at any time, withdraw his or her consent in writing and require the manager of the registry to remove from the registry, and destroy, all personal information that relates to him or her. Any subsequent administration of a vaccine to that person may be recorded in the registry only if that person again consents thereto in writing.

- Exceptions. 64. A person may also, without withdrawing the general consent given pursuant to section 63, request in writing that a type of vaccine being administered by a health professional not be recorded in the vaccination registry.
- Repeat doses. The request is valid for all additional doses of the vaccine the person may subsequently receive, but does not preclude the recording in the registry of any other vaccine received by the person.
- Transmission of information. 65. A person may, at any time, consent in writing to the transmission to the manager of the registry, for recording purposes, of all or part of the information held by a health professional in relation to the vaccinations the person has received, in or outside Québec.
- Information on the registry. 66. Written information on the vaccination registry must be available in all places where vaccines are administered, to be distributed to vaccinated persons.
- Access. 67. Access to personal information contained in the registry shall be granted to persons applying therefor to the extent and for the purposes hereinafter described :
- (1) to a vaccinated person, as regards information that relates to the person ;
 - (2) to a vaccinator who verifies the vaccination history of a person before administering a vaccine, provided the person receiving the vaccine has consented thereto ;
 - (3) to the national public health director, where the director has been informed that a particular lot of vaccine provides inadequate protection and he or she considers that the persons who have received the vaccine must be traced ;
 - (4) to a public health director having received an unusual clinical manifestation report pursuant to section 69, for the epidemiological investigation of that case in the region and of any similar case that may occur in respect of that type of vaccine ;
 - (5) to a public health director who, within the scope of an epidemiological investigation, wishes to assess the vaccination status of persons who may have been in contact with a communicable infectious agent ;
 - (6) to institutions operating a local community service centre for the purposes of interventions promoting vaccination in respect of the persons in their territories who have given prior consent to such access being granted or, on the same conditions, to the appropriate public health director, where an agreement has been signed between the director and such an institution whereby such promotional activities are carried out by the public health department.

Provisions applicable. Subject to the first paragraph, access to such information in all other circumstances is subject to the provisions of sections 17 to 28 of the Act respecting health services and social services, with the necessary modifications.

Entries. 68. Subject to sections 62 to 65, every person who administers a vaccine must, in the manner and within the time limits prescribed by regulation of the Minister, record in the registry the name of the person to whom the vaccine has been administered, the name of the vaccine used, the lot number of the vaccine, the dose received, the date and place of vaccination and the health insurance number of the person who has received the vaccine. The person administering the vaccine must also provide any other information prescribed by regulation of the Minister.

Delegated management. The Minister may, in the regulation, prescribe that in a given region or territory, vaccination data are collected, recorded in the registry, transmitted or made accessible by a health and social services institution or a regional board on behalf of the Minister or the manager of the registry.

DIVISION II

REPORTING OF UNUSUAL CLINICAL MANIFESTATIONS

Unusual clinical manifestations. 69. Any physician or nurse who observes an unusual clinical manifestation, temporally associated with vaccination, in a person having received a vaccine or a contact of that person and who suspects a link between the vaccine and the unusual clinical manifestation must report the situation to the appropriate public health director as soon as possible.

Information to be provided. The physician or nurse must provide the name and health insurance number of the person in whom the unusual clinical manifestation was observed and the name and health insurance number of the person who was vaccinated, if not the same. The physician or nurse must also provide the public health director with a brief description of the event observed and any other information prescribed by regulation of the Minister.

Recording. Any unusual reaction to a vaccine on the part of a person who has agreed to participate in the vaccine registration procedure must be recorded in the registry by the physician or nurse in the manner and within the time limits prescribed in the regulation of the Minister made under section 68.

DIVISION III

COMPENSATION FOR VICTIMS OF VACCINATION

Definitions. 70. In this division, unless the context indicates otherwise,

“victim”; (1) “victim” means the vaccinated person, a person having contracted the disease from a vaccinated person, the foetus of either of such persons or, if a death occurs, the person who is entitled to a death benefit;

- “bodily injury”. (2) “bodily injury” means any serious permanent physical or mental injury, or death.
- Compensation. 71. The Minister shall compensate, regardless of responsibility, any victim of bodily injury caused by a voluntary vaccination against a disease or infection identified in the regulation made by the Government under section 137 or a vaccination imposed pursuant to section 123.
- Applicability. In either case, the vaccination must have taken place in Québec.
- Regulations applicable. 72. The rules prescribed in the Automobile Insurance Act (R.S.Q., chapter A-25) and the regulations thereunder apply to the computation of the compensation provided for in section 71, with the necessary modifications.
- Prescription. 73. Entitlement to compensation under this division is prescribed three years after the date of vaccination and, in the case of a death benefit, three years after the date of death.
- Prescription. However, where an injury becomes apparent gradually, the time limit runs only from the day the injury first becomes apparent.
- Civil proceedings. 74. The victim may institute civil proceedings against any person who is liable for the bodily injury.
- Subrogation. 75. The Minister is subrogated by operation of law to the rights and actions of the victim against the person liable for the bodily injury up to the amount of compensation paid by the Minister or of the capital representing the pension to be paid by the Minister.
- Contestation. 76. Any claimant who believes he or she has been wronged by a decision of the Minister pursuant to section 71 or 72 may, within 60 days of the date of notification of the decision, contest the decision before the Administrative Tribunal of Québec.
- Compensation continued. 77. A proceeding before the Administrative Tribunal of Québec does not suspend the payment of compensation paid as a pension.
- Consolidated revenue fund. 78. The sums necessary for the purposes of this division shall be taken out of the consolidated revenue fund.

CHAPTER VIII

REPORTABLE INTOXICATIONS, INFECTIONS AND DISEASES

- Mandatory reporting. 79. The Minister shall, by regulation, draw up a list of intoxications, infections and diseases that must be reported to the appropriate public health director and, in certain cases provided for in the regulation, to the Minister or to both the public health director and the national public health director.

- Health threat. 80. The list may include only intoxications, infections or diseases that are medically recognized as capable of constituting a threat to the health of a population and as requiring vigilance on the part of public health authorities or an epidemiological investigation.
- Report. 81. The report must indicate the name and address of the person affected and contain any other personal or non-personal information prescribed by regulation of the Minister. The report must be transmitted in the manner, in the form and within the time prescribed in the regulation.
- Persons required to report. 82. The following persons are required to make the report in the cases provided for in the regulation of the Minister:
- (1) any physician who diagnoses an intoxication, infection or disease included in the list or who observes the presence of clinical manifestations characteristic of any of those intoxications, infections or diseases in a living or deceased person ;
- (2) any chief executive officer of a private or public laboratory or of a medical biology department, where a laboratory analysis conducted in the laboratory or department under his or her authority shows the presence of any reportable intoxications, infections or diseases.

CHAPTER IX

COMPULSORY TREATMENT AND PROPHYLACTIC MEASURES FOR CERTAIN CONTAGIOUS DISEASES OR INFECTIONS

DIVISION I

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES OR INFECTIONS AND COMPULSORY TREATMENT

- Compulsory treatment. 83. The Minister may, by regulation, draw up a list of the contagious diseases or infections for which any person affected is obligated to submit to the medical treatments required to prevent contagion.
- List. The list may include only contagious diseases or infections that are medically recognized as capable of constituting a serious threat to the health of a population and for which an effective treatment that would put an end to the contagion is available.
- Duty of physician. 84. Any physician who observes that a person is likely suffering from a disease or infection to which this division applies must take, without delay, the required measures to ensure that the person receives the care required by his or her condition, or direct the person to a health and social services institution able to provide such treatments.

- Emergency admission. 85. In the case of certain diseases or infections identified in the regulation, any health or social services institution having the necessary resources must admit as an emergency patient any person suffering or likely to be suffering from one of those diseases or infections. If the institution does not have the necessary resources, it must direct the person to an institution able to provide the required services.
- Refusal notified. 86. Any physician who becomes aware that a person who is likely suffering from a disease or infection to which this division applies is refusing or neglecting to submit to an examination must notify the appropriate public health director as soon as possible.
- Refusal notified. Such a notice must also be given by any physician who observes that a person is refusing or neglecting to submit to the required medical treatment or has discontinued a treatment that must be completed to prevent contagion or a recurrence of contagion.
- Inquiry. 87. Any public health director who receives a notice under section 86 must make an inquiry and, if the person refuses to be examined or to submit to the appropriate treatment, the public health director may apply to the Court for an order enjoining the person to submit to such examination or treatment.
- Court ordered treatment. 88. A judge of the Court of Québec or of the municipal courts of the cities of Montréal, Laval or Québec having jurisdiction in the locality where the person is to be found may, if the judge believes on reasonable grounds that the protection of the health of the population so warrants, order the person to submit to an examination and receive the required medical treatment.
- Court ordered treatment. In addition, the judge may, if the judge believes on serious grounds that the person will refuse to submit to the examination or to receive the treatment, order that the person be taken to an institution maintained by a health or social services institution for examination and treatment. The provisions of section 108 apply to that situation, with the necessary modifications.

DIVISION II

COMPULSORY PROPHYLACTIC MEASURES

- Preventive measures. 89. The Minister may, for certain contagious diseases or infections medically recognized as capable of constituting a serious threat to the health of a population, make a regulation setting out prophylactic measures to be complied with by a person suffering or likely to be suffering from such a disease or infection, as well as by any person having been in contact with that person.
- Isolation. Isolation, for a maximum period of 30 days, may form part of the prophylactic measures prescribed in the regulation of the Minister.
- Circumstances. The regulation shall prescribe the circumstances and conditions in which specific prophylactic measures are to be complied with to prevent contagion.

It may also require certain health or social services institutions to admit as an emergency patient any person suffering or likely to be suffering from one of the contagious diseases or infections to which this section applies, as well as any person who has been in contact with that person.

Duty of health professional.

90. Any health professional who observes that a person is omitting, neglecting or refusing to comply with the prophylactic measures prescribed in the regulation made under section 89 must notify the appropriate public health director as soon as possible.

Inquiry.

The director must make an inquiry and, if the person refuses to comply with the necessary prophylactic measures, the director may apply to the Court for an order enjoining the person to do so.

Provisions applicable.

The provisions of section 88 apply to that situation, with the necessary modifications.

Emergency.

The director may also, in the case of an emergency, use the powers conferred by section 103, and sections 108 and 109 apply to such a situation.

End of isolation.

91. Despite any decision of the Court ordering the isolation of a person, isolation must cease as soon as the attending physician, after consulting the appropriate public health director, issues a certificate to the effect that the risk of contagion no longer exists.

CHAPTER X

REPORTING TO PUBLIC HEALTH AUTHORITIES

Reporting of health threats.

92. Government departments and bodies and local municipalities must report to the appropriate public health director or to the national public health director any threats to the health of the population that come to their knowledge or any situations which cause them to believe on reasonable grounds that the health of the population is threatened.

Suspected threat.

93. Any physician who suspects the presence of a threat to the health of the population must notify the appropriate public health director.

Possible threat.

Health and social services institutions must report to the appropriate public health director any situation where they believe on reasonable grounds that there exists a threat to the health of the persons who are present in their facilities.

Situation constituting a threat.

94. The directors of institutions or establishments constituting work environments or living environments, such as a business establishment, an educational institution, a childcare centre and other childcare facilities, a house of detention and transition housing may report to the appropriate public health director any situation which they have cause to believe constitutes a threat to the health of the persons who are present in those places. A health professional practising in such an institution or establishment may also report such a situation to the public health director.

Disclosure of confidential information.

95. Reporting a situation under this chapter does not authorize the person making the report to disclose personal or confidential information unless, after evaluating the situation, the public health authority concerned requires such information in the exercise of the powers provided for in Chapter XI.

Sexually transmitted agent.

The provisions of this chapter shall not be construed as authorizing a government department, a body, a local municipality, a health and social services institution, a physician, the director of an institution or establishment or a health professional to report a threat to the health of the population arising from a sexually transmitted biological agent.

CHAPTER XI

POWERS OF PUBLIC HEALTH AUTHORITIES AND THE GOVERNMENT IN THE EVENT OF A THREAT TO THE HEALTH OF THE POPULATION

DIVISION I

EPIDEMIOLOGICAL INVESTIGATIONS BY PUBLIC HEALTH DIRECTORS

Epidemiological investigation.

96. A public health director may conduct an epidemiological investigation in any situation where the public health director believes on reasonable grounds that the health of the population is or could be threatened and, in particular,

(1) where the director receives a report of an unusual clinical manifestation following a vaccination under section 69;

(2) where the director receives a report of an intoxication, infection or disease to which Chapter VIII applies;

(3) where the director receives a notice under Chapter IX to the effect that a person is refusing, omitting or neglecting to be examined or treated or to comply with compulsory prophylactic measures;

(4) where the director receives a report under Chapter X.

Special mobilization.

97. Where during an epidemiological investigation, a public health director is of the opinion that he or she is unable to intervene effectively or within the time required to complete the investigation or to protect the health of the population, the director may implement the resource mobilization plan of the territory's health or social services institutions that was included in the regional public health action plan, and, in that case, the institutions are required to comply with the director's instructions.

Departmental,
municipal or other powers.

98. A public health director who becomes aware during an epidemiological investigation that a government department, a local municipality or a body has, and may exercise, under another Act, a municipal by-law or an agreement, the inspection, inquiry or investigation powers necessary to ascertain the presence of a biological, chemical or physical agent that constitutes a threat to the health of the population must notify the government department, local municipality or body concerned of the situation and request it to proceed.

Jurisdiction.

In those circumstances, the public health director's epidemiological investigation shall be continued, but only the government department, local municipality or body concerned may exercise its inquiry, investigation or inspection powers, in particular, with respect to the premises, animals or substances in respect of which it has jurisdiction. The results obtained must be communicated as soon as possible to the public health director and the latter may require the immediate communication of any information necessary to enable the public health director's investigation to be continued.

Refusal.

A public health director who becomes aware that a government department, a local municipality or a body refuses to exercise its own powers, or delays in doing so, must notify the national public health director.

Health threat in health facility.

99. A public health director who becomes aware during an epidemiological investigation that a threat to the health of the population appears to have its origin in a facility maintained by a health or social services institution or in a deficient practice within such an institution must notify the director of professional services or, if there is no such director, the executive director.

Information.

If there is a council of physicians, dentists and pharmacists or a council of nurses within the institution, the director of professional services or, if there is no such director, the executive director must immediately inform the councils of the situation reported by the public health director.

Investigation
continued.

The public health director must also inform the national public health director of the situation, and the Minister may, if the Minister considers it necessary, request the public health director to also continue the epidemiological investigation underway in the institution.

Inspection.

The institution must as soon as possible take all measures required to inspect its facilities and review its practices and, if necessary, correct the situation. The measures taken must be communicated without delay to the public health director and to the Minister.

Powers of public health investigator.

100. Subject to section 98, a public health director may, where required within the scope of an epidemiological investigation,

(1) require that every substance, plant, animal or other thing in a person's possession be presented for examination;

(2) require that a thing in a person's possession be dismantled or that any container under lock and key be opened;

(3) carry out or cause to be carried out any excavation necessary in any premises;

(4) have access to any premises and inspect them at any reasonable time;

(5) take or require a person to take samples of air or of any substance, plant, animal or other thing;

(6) require that samples in a person's possession be transmitted for analysis to the Institut national de santé publique du Québec or to another laboratory;

(7) require any director of a laboratory or of a private or public medical biology department to transmit any sample or culture the public health director considers necessary for the purposes of an investigation to the Institut national de santé publique du Québec or to another laboratory;

(8) order any person, any government department or any body to immediately communicate to the public health director or give the public health director immediate access to any document or any information in their possession, even if the information is personal information or the document or information is confidential;

(9) require a person to submit to a medical examination or to furnish a blood sample or a sample of any other bodily substance, if the public health director believes on reasonable grounds that the person is infected with a communicable biological agent.

Entry. 101. The powers granted to a public health director by paragraph 4 of section 100 may not be exercised to enter a private residence without the consent of the occupant, unless the director has obtained a court order authorizing such entry.

Court order. A judge of the Court of Québec or of the municipal courts of the cities of Montréal, Laval or Québec having jurisdiction in the locality in which the residence is situated may grant the order if the judge is of the opinion that the protection of the health of the population warrants it.

Blood test. 102. Except if the person concerned gives consent, the powers provided for in paragraph 9 of section 100 shall not be exercised by a public health director unless he or she has obtained a court order to that effect.

Provisions applicable. The provisions of section 88 apply to such a situation, with the necessary modifications.

Isolation order. 103. A public health director may, at any time during an epidemiological investigation, as a precautionary measure, order a person to remain in isolation for a maximum period of 72 hours or to comply with certain specific directives so as to prevent contagion or contamination.

- Conditions. An isolation order may be issued, however, by the public health director only if the director believes on reasonable grounds that the person has been in contact with a communicable biological agent that is medically recognized as capable of seriously endangering the health of the population. The provisions of sections 108 and 109 apply to an isolation order issued under this section.
- Reasonable assistance. 104. Every owner or possessor of a thing or occupant of premises must, at the request of a public health director, provide all reasonable assistance and furnish all information necessary to enable the director to conduct an epidemiological investigation.
- Non-compliance. 105. Subject to the provisions of section 135, any public health director who becomes aware that a person is neglecting or refusing to cooperate in the investigation, objects to the director exercising a power granted to the director by section 100 or refuses to comply with directives given under section 103 may apply to a judge of the Court of Québec or of the municipal courts of the cities of Montréal, Laval or Québec having jurisdiction in the locality where the person is to be found, for the issuing of an order.
- Court order. The judge shall issue any order considered appropriate in the circumstances.
- Powers of public health director. 106. Where, during an investigation, a public health director is of the opinion that there exists a real threat to the health of the population, the director may
- (1) order the closing of premises or give access thereto only to certain persons or subject to certain conditions, and cause a notice to be posted to that effect;
 - (2) order the evacuation of a building;
 - (3) order the disinfection, decontamination or cleaning of premises or of certain things and give clear instructions to that effect;
 - (4) order the destruction of an animal, plant or other thing in the manner the director indicates, or order that certain animals or plants be treated;
 - (5) order the cessation of an activity or the taking of special security measures if the activity presents a threat for the health of the population;
 - (6) order a person to refrain from being present for the time indicated by the public health director in an educational institution, work environment or other place of assembly if the person has not been immunized against a contagious disease an outbreak of which has been detected in that place;
 - (7) order the isolation of a person, for a period not exceeding 72 hours indicated by the public health director, if the person refuses to receive the treatment necessary to prevent contagion or if isolation is the only means to prevent the communication of a biological agent medically recognized as capable of seriously endangering the health of the population;

(8) order a person to comply with specific directives to prevent contagion or contamination;

(9) order any other measure the public health director considers necessary to prevent a threat to the health of the population from worsening or to decrease the effects of or eliminate such a threat.

Precautionary measure. Notwithstanding the provisions of the first paragraph, the public health director may also use the powers conferred by subparagraphs 1 and 2 of that paragraph as a precautionary measure, if the public health director believes on reasonable grounds that there exists a threat to the health of the persons present in those premises or that building.

Exception. 107. Notwithstanding the provisions of section 106, a public health director may not use a power provided for in that section to prevent a threat to the health of the population from worsening or to decrease the effects of or eliminate such a threat if a government department, a local municipality or a body has the same power and is able to exercise it.

Provisions applicable. The provisions of section 98 apply in those circumstances, with the necessary modifications.

Isolation order. 108. An order issued by the public health director under subparagraph 7 of the first paragraph of section 106 is sufficient to require any person, including a peace officer, to do everything reasonably possible to locate and apprehend the person whose name appears in the order and take him or her to the place indicated therein or to a health or social services institution chosen by the public health director.

Entry. A person or peace officer acting under this section may not, however, enter a private residence without the consent of the occupant or without obtaining a court order authorizing such entry.

Information. Any person who is apprehended must be informed immediately of the reasons for the isolation order, the place where he or she is being taken and of his or her right to communicate with an advocate.

Emergency admission. The health or social services institution that receives the person pursuant to an order of the public health director or the court must admit the person as an emergency patient.

Period of isolation. 109. A person may not be maintained in isolation pursuant to an order of the public health director for more than 72 hours without the person's consent or without a court order.

Court order. A public health director may apply to a judge of the Court of Québec or of the municipal courts of the cities of Montréal, Laval or Québec having jurisdiction in the locality where the person in respect of whom the isolation order has been made is to be found, for an order enjoining that person to comply with the public health director's order and to remain in isolation for a maximum period of 30 days.

- Court order. The judge may grant the order if, in the judge's opinion, terminating the isolation would create a serious threat to the health of the population and, in the circumstances, isolation is the only effective means to protect the health of the population. The judge may also grant an order requiring the person to receive the treatment capable of eliminating any risk of contagion where such treatment is available, or make any order considered appropriate.
- End of isolation. Notwithstanding a court order, a person's isolation must cease as soon as the attending physician, after consulting the appropriate public health director, issues a certificate to the effect that the risks of contagion no longer exist.
- Court order. 110. Except as regards the provisions of subparagraph 7 of the first paragraph of section 106, where a person refuses to comply with an order of the public health director issued under section 106, the public health director may apply to a judge of the Court of Québec or of the municipal courts of the cities of Montréal, Laval or Québec having jurisdiction in the locality where that person is to be found, for an order enjoining the person to comply with the public health director's order.
- Court order. The judge may grant the order if, in the judge's opinion, there exists a threat to the health of the population and the order of the public health director is appropriate. The judge may also make any amendment to the order that appears reasonable in the circumstances.
- Motion. 111. Every application to a judge under this division or under section 87 or 90 shall be made by means of a motion by the public health director or any other person the public health director has specifically authorized, presented in accordance with the provisions of the first paragraph of article 763 of the Code of Civil Procedure (R.S.Q., chapter C-25).
- Service. Such a motion shall be served on the person concerned, but the judge may exempt the applicant from serving a motion if the judge considers that the resulting delay could needlessly endanger the health of the population.
- Issuance and enforceability. Every motion shall be decided by preference, and every order issued shall be enforceable despite an appeal. However, a judge of the Court of Appeal may suspend the enforcement of an order if the judge considers it necessary in the interests of justice.
- Service. Every order issued shall be served personally on the person concerned and may be enforced by a peace officer.
- Legal custodian. An order may, if necessary, be issued against a parent or tutor or other person having legal custody of the person concerned.

Order sent to parent or tutor.	1 12. Where the person subject to an order of the public health director is a minor, the order must also be addressed to one of the minor's parents or, if applicable, to the minor's tutor, or if there is no parent or tutor, to any person having legal custody of the minor, and the parent, tutor or guardian must ensure that the order is complied with.
Powers and delegations.	1 13. A public health director may personally exercise the powers provided for in this division or may specifically authorize certain persons to exercise certain powers on behalf of the public health director.
Peace officer.	1 14. A public health director may on request be accompanied by a peace officer for any part of an investigation.
Certificate of capacity.	1 15. A public health director must, on request, provide identification and show a certificate of capacity issued by the Minister.
